Negro Rioters Disrupt UN Debate

18 Guards Injured In Fracas

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—A screaming fist-swinging demonstration by pro-Lumumba Negroes that U.S. officials claimed was Communist-inspired disrupted a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today.

It was the wildest melee in UN history.

Some two dozen Negroes began the demonstration in the packed public gallery of the Security Council as U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson defended Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and said Russia's demand for his dismissal was a "virtual declaration of war on the United Nations."

Eighteen UN guards were injured slightly in the fracas. One of the demonstrators who had been struck in the mouth also was treated at the dispensary.

Six men and four women were taken to the security offices and later released after a short time. No charges were placed against them.

DREW KNIFE

One of the rioters drew a knife on a guard but was disarmed.

A UN official said there was a definite signal and when one group of about 50 or 60, almost all Negroes, broke through the public door leading into the spectator section. About 15 got inside and started down toward the area where the delegates were seated.

At that moment, another group seated in the hall, joined in the demonstration.

Two photographers were injured and spectators were jostled as UN guards ejected male demonstrators while their female companions continued to cry "Vive Lumumba!" and unintelligible epithets until the gallery was ordered cleared. All the Negroes interviewed by newsmen said they were Americans.

PRIVATE TALK

Official Washington sources explained privately to newsmen that the demonstration was Communist-inspired and said another was planned for 4 p.m. outside UN headquarters here.

They linked the near-riot with mob violence against Belgian embassies abroad following the slaying of leftist leader Patrice Lumumba in the Congo's dissident Katanga Province.

Informed sources said some of the demonstrators were admitted to the gallery on protocol passes obtained through the delegations of Ghana and Guinea.

After the security council was cleared, the UN headquarters was closed to the public for the rest of the day but the Congo debate continued.

At the UN entrance three demonstrators were arrested for shouting at passersby.

Stevenson, who attacked Russia's Congo policy, apologized to the council for the outbreak "to the extent that Americans may be involved."

BEFORE TRAGEDY STRUCK

Members of the U.S. figure skating team posed happily Tuesday night before boarding Belgian Sabena Airline 707 jet at New York's Idlewood Airport. The 18-member team was among 73 who died when plane crashed near Brussels today. There were no survivors. (AP Wirephoto.)

73 Killed In Belgian Disaster

(Times News Services)

BRUSSELS — Seventy-three persons, including the United States figure skating team, perished today in the flaming crash of a Sabena Airlines jet. Fifty-four Americans and one Canadian were among the dead in the Boeing 707.

The 18 members of the skating team were going to Prague for the international figure skating championships.

Among the dead was Laurence Owen, 16, who won the North American figure skating championship only four days ago.

Disaster struck at 10:05 a.m. as the $5,000,000 plane, its engines sounding oddly, sought a landing in bright sunshine after the flight from New York.

It slammed to earth beside a wood three miles north of Brussels International Airport and went up in flames fed by fuel as the tanks exploded one by one.

FARMER KILLED

All 61 passengers and the crew of 11 died. A Belgian farmer tilling his cabbage patch was struck and killed.

Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 49, of Winchester, Mass., nine time figure skating champion, was killed along with her two daughters who were members of the current team. The girls were Laurence, 16, and Maribel Owen, 20. Mrs. Owen last weekend had seen Laurence win the North American championship at Philadelphia over Wendy Griner of Toronto.

Mrs. Owen and coach Deane McMinn of Lomita, Calif., were accompanying the team to Prague. Mrs. Owen's husband died in 1952.

The team is the fifth major sports group wiped out by plane crashes in a dozen years, including soccer teams in Italy, Britain and Denmark. Sixteen members of the California Polytechnic football team were killed in the crack-up of a chartered plane last Oct. 29.

GOING TO FUNERAL

Victor Maes, 39, only Canadian aboard the plane, was a naturalized Canadian born in Belgium. A tobacco farmer at Vanessa near Brantford, he was on his way to his mother's funeral near Brussels. His wife Rachel was to have accompanied him, but changed her mind.

This was the first major air disaster of 1961 and the first Continued on Page 29

Britain Supports Dag In Lumumba 'Murder'

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government today made it clear it regards the killing of ousted Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba as murder.

It also made plain its intention of backing the United Nations Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjöld, in the face of Russian over demands over the incident.

The government stand was enunciated in the House of Lords by the foreign secretary, the Earl of Home, who called the killing "a disgraceful episode" and said Britain "utterly deplored" Lumumba's death.

Reading of Home's statement in the Commons by David Ormsby-Gore, minister of state for foreign affairs, touched off a noisy scene.

Labor member Fenner Brockway was greeted by Conservative shouts of "with-draw" and "sit down" when he tried to link responsibility for the Lumumba killing to the Eisenhower regime, Britain and Belgium as well as rival Congo factions.

Finally the speaker, Sir Harry Hylton-Foster, ruled Brockway's reference to the Eisenhower administration "out of order."

BELGIANS SHOT IN REPRISAL

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Two Belgians were reported today to have been shot in the Kasai Province capital of Luluabourg in reprisal for the slaying of former premier Patrice Lumumba.

The reports said Lumumba supporters fired on the Belgians on a cafe terrace when they failed to reply when asked what they thought about Lumumba's death.

The shooting was said to have sent Europeans in the area fleeing to United Nations headquarters at Luluabourg.

STUDENTS GO WILD

Embassies Cringe As Violence Flares

LONDON (Reuters) — Student mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw and set fire to the Belgian Embassy in Cairo today in fresh demonstrations against the slaying of Patrice Lumumba, ousted premier of The Congo.

Yelling students grappled with diplomats in the Warsaw embassy as they ransacked offices and carted documents to a bonfire in the street, splattering violet ink as they went.

"They even went for the women staff," said a diplomat, shaken from the second attack on the Warsaw embassy in two days.

Embassy officials and their secretaries took refuge from flying stones as about 300 demonstrators outside unleashed a fusillade amid shouts of "murderers, murderers."

In Cairo, rioting students invaded the Belgian Embassy and set fire to different parts of the building in a systematic effort to raze it.

Thick columns of smoke poured from the embassy's shattered windows and the street was littered with furniture hurled from second-storey windows.

Crowds stoned the United States information office, United Nations headquarters and the British Embassy.

The demonstrations came in the wake of violent protests Tuesday which left Belgian embassies heaped with rubble and shattered glass in Belgrade, Moscow and Warsaw.

Moscow workers' delegations streamed into the American, Belgian, British and French embassies today to deliver protests accusing these countries of being implicated in Lumumba's death.

UN-FLAG TORN

Some 3,000 demonstrators in Accra tore a United Nations flag to bits outside the regional UN offices in the Ghanaian capital. The crowd also demonstrated outside the American Embassy and one man repeatedly fired an old muzzle-loading rifle in the air.

In Paris, club-swinging police clashed outside the Belgian Embassy with a crowd of about 500 members of the French National Federation of African students, who chanted slogans such as "imperialist murderers." "Hammarskjöld resign" and "long live Lumumba."

Canada's Unemployment Registers 15-Year High

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's unemployment jumped sharply upward to 693,000 at mid-January, highest jobless figure for any month in the last 15 years, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The January unemployment figure—amounting to 10.8 per cent of the labor force—was 185,000 higher than the jobless figure at mid-December.

It was 146,000 higher than a year earlier and 56,000 higher than the previous post-war unemployment peak of 637,000, set in March of 1958.

The 10.8 per cent ratio of people out of jobs to the total labor force of 6,396,000 compares with 10.6 per cent at the 1958 unemployment peak. It is also higher than 8.8 per cent in January, 1960, and 9.5 per cent in January, 1959.

While the ranks of the unemployed jumped substantially in the new year, employment was also 47,000 higher than a year earlier, despite a seasonal decline of 199,000.

Picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Jan. 1961	Dec. 1960	Jan. 1960
Labor force	6,396	6,430	6,203
Employed	5,703	5,902	5,656
Unemployed	693	528	547

Of the 693,000 unemployed workers at mid-January, the majority—87 per cent—were men, the same proportion as in December.

Almost one-third had been in the construction industry when they were let out. Another third were in the various service-producing industries. The remainder were mostly in manufacturing and forestry.

Temporary layoffs showed a major jump between December and January, increasing to 63,000 from 39,000.

Of the remaining 630,000 out of a job and seeking work, 71 per cent had been unemployed for three months or less, 18 per cent for four to six months and 11 per cent for seven months or more.

A key point in the labor department's analysis is that the labor force at mid-January was 3.1 per cent higher than a year earlier, while employment was up 0.8 per cent.

The number of women with jobs increased by 101,000 over the year while the number of men employed showed a drop of 54,000.

CANADA TEAM LANDS SAFELY

AMSTERDAM (CP) — The Canadian figure-skating team, which like the U.S. squad was en route to the world championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia, also left New York's Idlewild Airport Tuesday night aboard another plane bound for Amsterdam.

The Canadians arrived at Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam this morning and left an hour later for Prague.

TOP ATHLETES KILLED

U.S. Skaters 7th Tragedy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The death of 18 members of the United States figure skating team in an airplane crash in Belgium while en route to the world championships in Prague is the seventh air tragedy in recent years involving sports teams.

In 1933, two members of the Winnipeg Toller basketball team lost their lives when a plane carrying the team crashed in Kansas.

Thirty-one persons were killed in a crash at Turin, Italy, May 4, 1949, including all members of the Italian national soccer team—hailed as the greatest Italian team of all time. It was composed of play from the Torino 11 of Turin which won the national championship four straight years.

In 1956, five football players, returning from the Shrine all-star game in Vancouver, were among 62 persons killed in a crash in the Rocky Mountains 100 miles east of Vancouver.

On Feb. 6, 1958, a British airliner carrying Britain's championship soccer team home from Yugoslavia fell and burned at Munich, and among the 21 killed were seven members of the team and eight British sports writers.

Two sports air tragedies occurred last year.

On July 16, a chartered plane crashed at Copenhagen, killing eight of Denmark's leading soccer players.

On Oct. 29, another chartered plane cracked up in fog at the Toledo airport, killing 16 members of the California Poly football team of San Luis Obispo en route home after being beaten 50-6 by Bowling Green of Ohio.

VALENTINES, CANDLES CROSS PARTY LINES

Valentines and beeswax candles were crossing all party lines in the legislature Tuesday.

Premier Bennett sent Valentine cards to the three women MLAs: Mrs. Lois Haggan and Mrs. Camille Mather of the CCF and Mrs. Buda Brown on the government side.

"No matter how much we may be at variance," Mrs. Mather told the House, "at least there is nothing to find fault with his beautiful manners."

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black was responsible for the candles—one for each MLA. They were made, he said, by an enterprising Creston teacher who has created a new industry in the area.

The premier got an extra large red one.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE LEGISLATURE

In the cut and thrust of debate, B.C. legislators sometimes fling words across the House which are adjudged unparliamentary—and in this respect they are no different from members of other democratic parliaments.

The Speaker in the New Zealand legislature has ruled that members must not call one another vultures, dirty dogs, larrikins, hornswooglers, imbeciles, suckers, liars or distortionists.

Nor must they use such terms as "false pretences" or "the honorable member is cracked."

In the B.C. legislature Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz has taken a similar stand. He won't have "false pretences," "deliberately misleading the public" or such terms as "Fascist" or "swindler."

He cracked down on Arthur Turner (CCF—Vancouver East) Tuesday when, in a reference to the budget, Mr. Turner said he would not be surprised if the government brought in a bill entitled: The Sharp Practices Financing Act.

Premier Bennett didn't like the sound of this and asked Mr. Turner to withdraw.

"I only said I would not be surprised," answered the member in lamb-like tones.

"The implications are the same," rapped the premier. Mr. Speaker Shantz banged his gavel and ruled that "sharp practices act" was a borderline expression which should not be used in the House, even in jest.

He intimated he would keep a sharp watch-out for unparliamentary expressions in the future.

Tempers flared again when Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca) accused CCFers Gordon Dowding and Cedric Cox from Burnaby of shouting "Fascist!" when a government member was speaking.

Both Mr. Dowding and Mr. Cox denied this and CCF leader Robert Strachan joined in their cries of "Withdraw!" while Mr. Shelford continued speaking.

In the midst of all the hub-bub, Deputy Speaker Alex Matthews banged his gavel and shouted, "Order, please!"

Mr. Shelford waited until the noise had subsided and then with a quiet smile said:

"If the members hadn't been making so much noise, they would have heard me withdraw!"

Earlier, Mr. Shelford stated that 15 of the government's 32 members fought against Fascism in the Second World War.

"That is nearly 50 per cent of our members and I would say it is a very good record for any group of this size."

A charming visitor from Idaho was intrigued by all the ceremonial in the House. She was told this was closely patterned on procedures in the Mother of Parliaments in London, England, but that there the Queen herself performed the opening and closing ceremonies.

"Oh, the cute thing!" the visitor said.

Premier Bennett laughed louder than anyone when Frank Calder, the gentlemanly CCF member for Atlin, suggested the premier had lost his "pep."

"He was not his old self when he presented the budget," Mr. Calder said. "There was no arm swinging and he appeared subdued. It was a tired budget read by a tired premier."

"Amid the criticism of a very tired Opposition," laughed Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

Arthur Turner also jibed at the premier when he said: "Public men should not have to blow their own horns. They should let someone else do it."

On being introduced to a stately Victoria woman whose face was familiar, I said:

"Didn't I see you at the premier's reception in the Empress Hotel lounge the day the legislature opened?"

Fixing me with a steely blue eye, she replied:

"You did not, Sir! I was attending a reception given by the Progressive Women Conservatives on the other side of the lounge."

which were not in need than of any thing else in the election campaign.

Frank Calder, the CCF member for far northern Atlin, said the higher gas tax would mean considerable hardship in his riding where great distances have to be travelled by road.

He said gasoline now costing between 57 and 61 cents a gallon in parts of northern B.C. may rise to 61 and 66 cents a gallon.

Mr. Calder regretted that the budget gave no indication of a winter works program in Atlin, or of measures for developing the mining industry.

"I trust the government will make strong representation to the gas companies in this regard before I am asked to vote on this increase."

BUY LESS

Mr. Shelford said the increase means "we will buy $8,000,000 less of some other consumer goods which will add to the number of unemployed."

Mr. Shelford said the increase in the gasoline tax had been brought about by heavy demands for more welfare services.

"These extra expenditures are demanded by the Opposition even more than by this side of the House... and sometimes you get the feeling they think everyone should be on welfare."

He said the welfare department is "too free" in handing out money. He had heard more criticism of too much welfare being given in cases

Regina Lawyer New Prosecutor

A special city council meeting today was to formally appoint a Regina lawyer with an international reputation for fighting "boiler room" stock promoters as the city's first full-time prosecutor.

W. W. Cameron, chairman of the Saskatchewan Securities Commission and former member of the Ontario Securities Commission, was recommended for the post at an "in camera" meeting.

He was selected from 17 applicants.

Mr. Cameron is expected to take his new position April 1 at a salary of "about $7,000 with additional fringe benefits." Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell revealed.

A full-time prosecutor was sought after council decided work loads were becoming too heavy to continue having the city solicitor serve as city prosecutor.

It negotiated a new contract with T. P. O'Grady to serve.

The earliest record of shorthand dates from 63 B.C., as used in recording the speeches of Caesar and Cicero in Rome.

IN PARLIAMENT

MPs 'Talk Out' Lower Voting Age

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—A bill to lower the minimum federal voting age to 18 from 21 was talked out by the Commons Tuesday, though its principle received warm support from members of all three parties in the House.

The measure did not come to a vote during the one hour devoted to private member's bills. It now goes to the bottom of the list, with little chance of coming up again at this session.

CCF member Frank Howard, sponsor of the bill—similar to the one he introduced at previous sessions of Parliament—said young people today have increased opportunity to gain a first-hand knowledge of public affairs.

As a result of improved communications, youth today had a much better insight into, and immediate knowledge and understanding of, political issues.

Young men of 18 were considered eligible for war service. They should also be considered capable of exercising mature political judgment.

White-thatched, 70-year-old W. C. Henderson (PC—Carleton) supported the principle of the bill — "an 18-year-old woman is old enough to have a family, that's what counts."

But later in his brief speech he said he would like to see a "happy medium" struck — a voting age of perhaps 19 or 19½.

Word Marathon Over 60-Mile Railway

French-speaking MPs from opposite sides of the Commons clashed over federal railway policies.

Government supporters chided members of the Liberal opposition for not pushing railway construction hard enough when their party was in power. The Liberals hurled criticism back at the Progressive Conservative government.

At times, the House, sitting in committee, wandered widely from the matter at hand—a government resolution leading to legislation to authorize the public-owned CNR to build a 60-mile, $8,400,000 branch line into Quebec's resource-rich north.

The resolution finally was adopted and the actual legislation was introduced for first reading.

It authorizes the CNR to construct the line, gives the federal treasury authority to advance temporary loans up to $9,660,000 for the job and permits the CNR to issue government guaranteed securities to pay for the project.

The resolution was the first step toward parliamentary approval of a measure authorizing a rail development that will link the base metal area of Mattagami Lake, some 500 miles north of Ottawa, with the CNR's Chibougamau, Quebec, line.

Just before the 10 p.m. adjournment, the Commons whisked two bills through second reading, committee study and third and final reading.

One repeals an old pre-Confederation tax on ships entering Halifax harbor to pay for a lookout on Citadel Hill.

The other removes from the Indian Act a provision permitting the cabinet to exempt Indians—individually or as bands—from the Indian Act without their consent.

Under the new amendment the action would be taken only after an application is made by an Indian band to have its band funds disbursed and its reserve lands distributed among the Indians.

In other business, the Commons heard:

Defence Minister Harkness announced that tenders will be called in about two years for 480 Bobcat-armored personnel carriers. The cost is expected to be about $17,500,000.

Venus Rocket Slowing Down

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Russian scientist said today that the Soviet Venus rocket has slowed down on its long journey—but strange as it may seem—it now is expected to reach the area of the planet 38 to 44 days sooner than originally expected.

PARKS COMMITTEE

City Urged To Match Work Grants

City parks committee has recommended that council offer to match dollar-for-dollar any projects by volunteer groups for capital improvements to the parks.

A request from Victoria and District (soccer) Football League for dressing rooms at Topaz Park touched off the recommendation.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said the improvement was desirable because hundreds of boys play soccer at the park. But, he added, cost would be more than $10,000 and the money was needed more urgently for other parks developments.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said it was possible that some volunteer organization or service group might wish to make the dressing room building a project if they knew it was needed.

He suggested the matching grant as an incentive to community groups to help develop such projects in the parks.

Committee decided to erect a sign at Gonzales Beach to inform passersby that it is a public beach. A $1,500 appropriation for clearing logs from the beach also was approved for inclusion in this year's preliminary estimates.

A recommendation for drafting a bylaw to simplify procedures in preventing flower picking and garbage dumping in Thetis Lake watershed was made after committee was told a similar bylaw protects the Beaver Lake watershed.

The revised forecast will bring the rocket, "Venus 1", into its approach to the earth's sister planet about mid or late April instead of late May as was estimated when the rocket was launched last Sunday.

The slowing velocity of the rocket means that the rocket will have a shorter distance to travel before Venus catches up with it.

The seeming contradiction of a slower spaceship reaching its target faster was explained in technical terms by Soviet astronaut Ari Sternfeld.

REFER TO EINSTEIN

Sternfeld, in an interview with the official news agency Tass, referred to Einstein's theory of relativity as providing the answer. He said this was the situation:

—Earth and Venus orbit in continual movements in ellipses around the sun.

—When the Russians fired the rocket Sunday they aimed it at where Venus would be in late May.

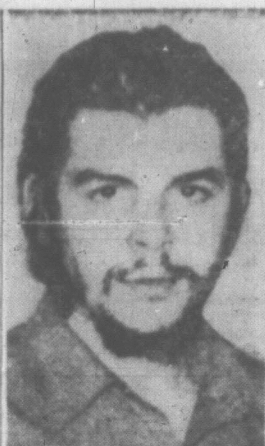

—But since the rocket has slowed down, its present path will bring it near Venus sooner than the previous course would have done because Venus itself will be closer to earth at the time of the "meeting".

Thus, Sternfeld said, the rocket will reach Venus in a shorter period of time because it will have less distance to travel than originally contemplated.

Cuba Ready To Make Up With U.S.?

HAVANA (Reuters) — National bank president Ernesto Che Guevara indicated Tuesday that Premier Fidel Castro's government would welcome a reconciliation with the United States.

Guevara told reporters that Cuba was "not interested in this present tension between the two countries."

Guevara said Cuba was willing to sell its sugar to the United States "provided they want to buy with no strings attached."

Referring to possible payment of reparations for intervened nationalized industries, he said Cuba was willing to negotiate with the British-Dutch Shell Oil Company.

"We have asked Shell to negotiate but they don't want to," the 30-year-old Argentine-born revolutionary said.

DISASTER FOR YOUNG LOVER

He Puckered Too Far

ATIENZA, Spain (AP)—The passionate lover of Atienza will not remember Valentine's Day, 1961, kindly.

Long hours spent courting his sweetheart through the barred window of her room while her mother and father were asleep ended in disaster. Longing for a kiss, the young lover put his head through the bars. It stuck.

He had to wait several hours for a locksmith to set him free. While he waited a crowd collected.

The noise made by the watchers awoke the girl's father.

He beat the young lover as he struggled to get free, and finally sent him home with a bruised head.

He had only one consolation:

Minority Cheat, Lie to Get Welfare Aid, Black Charges

Welfare Minister Wesley Black said Tuesday there are people in B.C. who perjure themselves to get welfare aid.

He told the legislature that they were "definitely a minority" of the total social welfare caseload.

"There are people able to buy liquor and tailor-made cigarettes and use taxis with the people's money," said Mr. Black in the budget debate.

He listed three types of cheaters:

1. People who get unemployment insurance in one area and move to another to apply for social assistance.

2. Travelling swindlers who use false identification to obtain assistance in different offices throughout B.C.

3. People who conceal the value of estates and other assets and continue to draw allowances.

"I regret," said Mr. Black, "that there are some people who will perjure themselves in order to obtain public funds."

The Price of Mr. Bennett

THE END RESULT OF THE Bennett Government's financial policies is candidly revealed by Mr. Bonner. He says it may soon be compelled to collect a separate provincial income tax, on top of the federal tax.

Let there be no mistake about the effect of such a tax.

The federal government no doubt will allow the British Columbia taxpayer to deduct his provincial tax from his federal tax, up to a certain amount. But that amount has been reached already in the present tax-sharing formula, which gives the provincial governments 14 per cent of the nation's total income tax today.

Hard-pressed for money, in huge deficit already and likely to sink deeper, the federal government cannot afford to diminish its own revenues much more by further concessions to the provinces. If it should cut federal taxes as an economic stimulant, as urged by the Liberal party, that cut, of course, would be temporary. Total federal taxes, under any party, are going up, not down, in the long run.

It follows that if the provincial government is to get any more income tax money than it gets under the existing federal-provincial formula this cannot be at the expense of the federal government, not to any significant amount anyway. The extra money that Mr. Bonner evidently intends to get must come out of the British Columbia taxpayer.

Under this arrangement the taxpayer would probably fill out two income tax forms every year, though this is avoidable if the federal government agrees to collect British Columbia's taxes for it.

With one or two tax forms, the financial result would be the same—double taxation for British Columbia, a provincial income tax added to the federal tax by any amount that the provincial government chose to collect.

Already British Columbia is paying a high price for the luxury of the Bennett Government, the most extravagant ever known in Canada. The price will be still higher if we are to enforce a provincial income tax.

Whether Mr. Bonner also, proposes a separate corporation income tax is not clear but it would be logical once the theory of double taxation is accepted.

In that case not only would the ordinary citizen pay more taxes but the cost of doing business in British Columbia would be raised—this at the very time when Mr. Bennett is urging our industries to become more competitive.

But all these results will be inevitable if the provincial government continues on its present course. As Mr. Bonner plainly implies, the government must get more revenue from somewhere, if not from Ottawa then from the provincial taxpayer. The increase in the gasoline tax is only a drop in the bucket of Mr. Bennett's increasing and apparently unlimited needs.

If possible, Mr. Bennett will get more money from the federal government but that is hardly a realistic hope when the federal government has failed to balance its budget since 1957 and faces huge increases in expenditure.

But if the federal government yielded to British Columbia and other provinces for political or financial reasons (mainly to satisfy the powerful Premier Frost of Ontario), even then the British Columbia taxpayer would pay the shot. For in collecting money to be turned over to British Columbia the federal government would get it from the British Columbia taxpayer in federal taxes. For him there can be no escape from any tax increase, federal or provincial.

Nevertheless, the mounting total of Mr. Bennett's budgets, the expanding public services, the recent losses on the P.G.E. Railway which was guaranteed to make handsome profits, and the demand for still more federal money all lead to the end foreseen by Mr. Bonner. The privilege of living in Mr. Bennett's "debt-free" paradise comes high but we have not paid the full bill yet.

An Eye on Sharp Practices

THIS IS MR. RAY PERRAULT'S first session in the British Columbia legislature, but new as he is to the environment he has shown a sound and considered appreciation of his duties in opposition.

His contribution to the budget debate this week reflects a constructive concern for the people of British Columbia: He asks the government to act to protect the public from sharp practice in a number of commercial fields. He calls for a program of long-term development of provincial resources rather than an invitation to speculators to invade British Columbia for a quick turnover.

He is neither bamboozled by flamboyant oratory from the government benches nor is he pessimistic over the future of this province's future through growth under private enterprise.

The tone and substance of Mr. Perrault's statements are quietly confident. They are of a nature to create trust in the public.

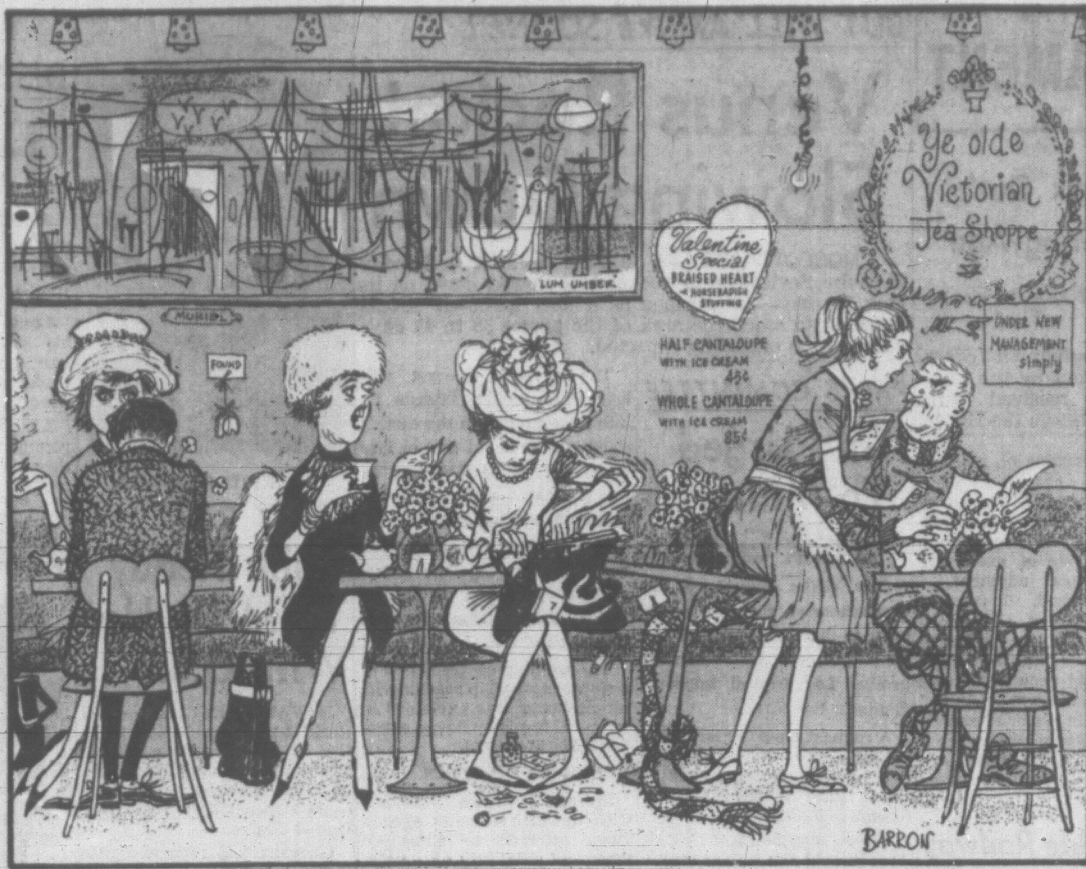

His proposal that the government take action against "the most blatant examples of fraud in car selling, home repairs, stock deals and real estate swindles" is a sensible suggestion which should appeal to all honest citizens.

The victims of such practices have recourse to law, of course, but in many cases they have neither the knowledge nor the means with which to take appropriate action. Leadership from the government could help them in this respect, though it is not necessary to establish a special department for that purpose.

His call for a re-examination of the administration's taxation policy has one chief purpose—to care for the individual by protecting his own pocket and to give him employment opportunities by relieving industry and business of some of the barriers checking their ability to provide more jobs.

As the session progresses the public will hear more from the young man elected on his first bid for provincial public office. He has created a favorable impression so far this session and can be expected to strengthen it as his leadership of the house Liberals proceeds.

"Harold's off on this new Russian Venus space thing now... he's always so far ahead of me... I'm still trying to make head nor tail of the Congo..."

PASSED ALONG FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

By B. A. TOBIN

Say, Did You Hear What They're Saying?

THERE is nothing livelier than a rumor. It can start from nothing, grow, proliferate, reverse itself, double in size as many times as necessary and die with either a whimper or a bang to fit the occasion. It's a much more sprightly thing than news, which has to have a basis of fact and a reasonable amount of background. Rumors don't need facts—in fact, they can't live in contact with facts.

In the presence of fact a rumor becomes either a news item or a lie. And as for background—a rumor does much better without any. Neither does it need a source. Rumors quote "People"; rumors can be attributed to "They"; or they can be even more vague and originate in "I hear."

A really admirable rumor should show imagination and originality. It should be of such a nature as to have some faint trace of authenticity without actually being factual. At its best it should present the hearer with a dare: it should give him the choice of taking a chance, being courageous and believing it, or of being frightened and logical and rejecting it.

Many a time the mere adventurousness of a rumor will win it believers or at least repeaters—for of course a rumor must have repeaters or it will die aborning.

Best Effect

For best effect a rumor should involve persons or things comparatively well known. At the same time it should imply that the teller has some inside information, a little better insight into non-public affairs that makes it possible for him to impart the information.

That aspect ensures that the rumor will be relayed with full speed, for each teller will want to bask in the glow of his authoritative role.

Perhaps as fine an example of a classic rumor as could be imagined—and that's a good word to use—is one recently reported to be going the rounds in England and on this continent. Briefly, it says that the Archbishop of Canterbury is resigning his office in order to become a Roman Catholic.

The American people are so tense that it is impossible even to put them to sleep with a sermon.

—Norman Vincent Peale.

Now that is an excellent rumor; it has all the qualifications. It concerns a prominent personage, it suggests that the rumor teller has access to inside information; it challenges the listener to take flight and zoom off on an exciting tangent; and it has the basic merit of being likely to attract attention wherever it is told—even arguments and fistfights.

It also has a weird sort of logic. The Archbishop visited the Pope recently, didn't he? And right afterwards he announced his forthcoming retirement, didn't he? And it's well known that he's been advocating closer unity among the churches, isn't it? Well, then?

The Archbishop, of course, has issued a denial; in fact he has said that there is about as much chance of his joining Rome as of the Pope becoming an Episcopalian.

This will do him little good. A great many who hear the denial will be convinced that he is merely covering up, and will await a later official confession. Many others will believe him, but privately blame him for spoiling a perfectly good rumor. And another faction will seize on his simile and start a companion rumor that the Pope is going to become an Episcopalian.

There is still another oblique way in which a rumor can be generated out of this likely material. A good rumor-passer could drop a remark like this in any company and get a satisfying reaction: "Say, I hear a rumor that the Archbishop of Canterbury ISN'T going to become a Roman Catholic."

That jolts the person who has heard the first rumor, but jolts even more the person who so far has heard neither report.

It immediately establishes the teller not only as one with inside information, but with so much inside information that he can even refute the insiders.

It is easy to see how news—mere factual expression of the truth—can rarely hope to compete in attractiveness with rumor. News hardly ever has the oomph and whizz to rouse a challenge in the hearer's mind—the take-a-chance attitude that gives rumor its sparkle and allure.

But there does remain a close link between rumor and news. For the highest triumph that can accrue to rumor is to become news—to show that it was true all along.

On the other hand, however, the worst fate that can happen to a news item is to be proved to be nothing but rumor; it sinks to a low from which even rumormanship cannot rescue it—a fate which the Archbishop of Canterbury will no doubt spare the current offering.

'Phony Racket'

Mr. C. E. Stroud's excellent letter against university graduates for welfare work hits the nail right on the head. Not only in welfare work but throughout our whole democratic system this false stress on university degrees is idiotic and does not lead to efficiency and economy. In actual test, just the opposite.

This education binge of the past 25 years has us all reeling, and any thinking person who will take time out to analyze the results can only come to the conclusion that, with a few exceptions it is a phony racket which only adds to the tax burden and floods our bureaucratic-ridden government departments with incompetent degree-holders, excluding entirely the intelligent layman. I fear this insidious trend far more than any Russian threat.

Defending CBC

I feel I must associate myself with your correspondent, Winifred Ockenden in defending the CBC against the criticism levelled against the CBC by your correspondent George Coombs in his letter published in the Times of January 30.

Firstly I feel that the plays shown by the CBC are in every way equal or superior to those of the American networks. In addition I believe that we have some very talented Canadian actors who take part in these plays. Your correspondent complains of the English accent of some of these actors and while I agree that an exaggerated English accent is most distasteful I believe that the normal educated English accent is preferable to the nasal twang of many American and Canadian actors.

I have recently returned from a trip of three weeks to the U.S. and in those three weeks I did not see a single show which would compare with CBC Close-up, Front Page Challenge, Consensus, Explorations, Fighting Words and others which give the listener something to think about.

I agree with your correspondent that Perry Como and Ed Sullivan of that type produced by the CBC but surely we are not going to condemn our national network on this score. Surely the mission of our national network is on a higher plane than variety. I agree that the programs have to be varied and that variety must be included but as a taxpayer I would object most strongly if the CBC wasted the taxpayers' money on costly spectacles such as the Perry Como and other variety shows produced by the U.S. networks.

Of course it is quite impossible for any network to satisfy all its viewers but I feel we should be very proud of our national TV network.

Outstanding Tribute

Recently the American Psychiatric Association announced that the facilities and services at the Cresce Clinic, Provincial Mental Hospital and Valleyview had received full certification.

This accreditation has never been won by any other mental hospital in Canada. Actually on the whole continent there are very few mental hospitals which have qualified for this honor.

In making the presentation of the APA certificate it was stated many times that the "quality of the employees" was the main reason for the certification.

All parts of British Columbia should express their appreciation of the splendid work done by the employees at Essondale.

Protection From Bomb

In her maiden speech, as reported in the February 9 Times, M.L.A. Mrs. Camille Mather was correct in her condemnation of bomb shelters if she meant that they would be useless against the direct heat and blast effects of a nuclear bomb. That is quite so, according to informed authorities. However, this fact should be qualified by stating that a properly constructed shelter certainly provides adequate heat-blast protection at a distance of eight miles from the bomb strike. Further, this type of shelter protects against direct radiation and radiation fallout (expected to cover an area 200 by 40 miles in extent). As for her contention that a bombed area would be uninhabitable for five years, this is hardly borne out by the facts.

A Peek at the Violent Quarrel Behind the Iron Curtain . . . and It Still Goes On

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

A MAJOR break-through in our knowledge of behind-the-scenes developments in the protracted struggle between Moscow and Peking shows this conflict to have been far more violent, acrimonious and fundamental than has hitherto been evident.

There has come into our hands a fully-documented report of the charges and counter-charges between Peking and Moscow at the Moscow Conference of more than 80 Communist Parties in November and December last year.

This report, which contains detailed summaries of hitherto secret correspondence, came from a satellite source. There is a strong possibility that it was a deliberate "leak" on the part of the Russians.

It not only confirms the accuracy of what had already been deduced about the strained state of Sino-Soviet relations, in face of indignant Soviet denials of any such strain, but also puts flesh on what was dismissed by many as an arid doctrinal debate.

The debate itself, which reached a first climax at the Bucharest Conference last June, and a second in Moscow at the close of the year, was the outward expression of the most serious crisis the Communist Party has had to weather since the Russian Revolution.

In the course of it Mr. Khrushchev personally was accused by the Chinese of revisionism—a deadly sin of mis-handling the Polish and Hungarian revolts of 1956, and of sacrificing China in particular and the Communist movement in general in the interests of a Russo-American detente.

Mr. Khrushchev for his part, in his most violent mood, accused Mao Tse-tung of being like Stalin, of being oblivious of any interests but his own, and of spinning theories detached from the realities of the modern world. In the end an agreed declaration was published, and in it the Russians had the upper hand. But the Chinese on many points reserved the right to differ.

The quarrel goes back a long way. Some would say it goes back to the twenties, when Stalin sacrificed the Chinese Communist Party to Chiang Kai-shek; others would say to the immediate post-war years, when the Russians stripped Manchuria bare and gave no help to the revolutionary Chinese.

The Russians themselves, in a secret circular about the sins of the Chinese Communist Party, dated June 21 last, tried to localize the quarrel. It began, they say, in effect, only when China started ignoring the letter and the spirit of the twelve-Party Moscow Declaration of 1957.

The Chinese, on the other hand, in a critically important and hitherto secret letter dated September 10 last, replying not only to the Soviet circular but to the Soviet charges brought against them at Bucharest in June, go back to 1956.

The real differences, they insist, started at the Twentieth Party Congress, when, in his de-Stalinization speech, Mr. Khrushchev denied Stalin's "positive" role without any previous discussion with the "fraternal parties."

Further, they say, they objected strongly to the Soviet mobilization against Poland in 1956, which they effectively restrained, and also to an alleged Russian plan to have the Polish Party collectively condemned by all the Communist Parties of the world.

For good measure, the letter declares that there had been a sharp difference between China and Russia about the handling of the Hungarian uprising: at one time, the Chinese letter states, the Russians had decided to withdraw their troops; the Chinese had effectively intervened to stop them.

Be that as it may, the quarrel did not begin to take real shape until 1958, and it did not come out into the open until last year. It was a dramatic year indeed, and during the course of it the main issues between Moscow and Peking were swiftly crystallized.

It is a fascinating aspect of the report that its compilers, devoted Communists, did not discuss in any detail what we should consider the dramatic, the concrete points of difference, but concentrated on doctrinal issues; at first sight meaningless to us, but wonderfully and terribly alive to them and conditioning all their actions—therefore, in effect, alive to us too.

Some of the "concrete" issues are serious enough. They range from the now notorious withdrawal of Soviet technicians from China last August (the reasons for this, it now appears, were that the Chinese were using them in a way the Russians did not approve of and that they were being doctrinally perverted by the Chinese) to Soviet reluctance to supply the Chinese with the atom-bomb and, even more interesting, the break-down of a scheme for a unified Pacific naval command. (Moscow, it seems, was afraid that the Chinese would draw the Soviet Union into a war over Formosa.)

All these and many more issues were freely aired at the Moscow Conference—not least, strong Soviet objections to Chinese actions in India and Algeria; these, the Russians said, were calculated to destroy the confidence of the bourgeois world in the Communist desire for peace and to inflame Afro-Asian suspicions of international Communism. But the whole weight of the debate centred on matters of guiding doctrine.

These controversial issues have already been reported as they showed themselves on the surface increasingly in the long-drawn-out press polemics between Moscow and Peking last summer and autumn. They are six in number:

(1) IS WAR INEVITABLE? The Russians, since the Twentieth Congress in 1956, say that times have changed since Lenin laid down the doctrine of the inevitability of war, and that it no longer holds. The Chinese say that war cannot be avoided, so long as imperialism exists.

their mentality was provided by the chief Chinese spokesman at Bucharest, who countered the Russian argument by declaring the Russians themselves had already stopped two local wars, in Suez and in Cuba, by threatening long-range intervention . . .

(3) CAN SOCIALISM BE ACHIEVED WITHOUT VIOLENCE? The Russians since 1956 have been saying "Yes." The Chinese deny it categorically except as the rarest exception, citing Lenin to support them.

(4) IS PEACEFUL CO-EXISTENCE A GOOD IDEA? The Russians say it is not only good in itself but necessary, and, in the fullness of time, will benefit the cause of Socialism. The Chinese say it is good only as a temporary tactical move to deceive the West.

(5) SHOULD COMMUNIST SUPPORT BE GIVEN TO BOURGEOIS, I.E. NON-COMMUNIST, LIBERATION MOVEMENTS? The Russians say "Yes"—everything that weakens the great imperialist powers must benefit the Socialist camp. The Chinese say "No"—it is a waste of money and resources; it discourages genuine revolutionaries; it strengthens the imperialist camp by enlarging the effective area of anti-Communism.

(6) HOW SHOULD THE PRESENT EPOCH BE DEFINED IN MARXIST TERMS? This question with its air of faintly mad academicism was the one which moved Mr. Khrushchev himself as much as any. Everything, he said, depended on the answer to it. The Chinese had been insisting that this was an epoch of wars and revolutions; the Soviet view was that it was the "epoch of the disintegration of imperialism, of transition to Socialism, and of the formation and consolidation of a world system of Socialism." It was supremely important to agree on the correct definition; because, from this, all appraisals and actions must flow.

At first many delegates to the Moscow conference had been uneasy. They had not liked Mr. Khrushchev's overbearing manner. They had not liked the way they had been isolated not merely from the ordinary Russians, but from each other, by police guards; they had not liked the way the Russians had tried to regiment them.

But the bitterness of the Chinese attack, the inability of the Chinese delegates to distinguish between the bourgeois Eisenhower and the bourgeois Nehru, the wholly callous manner in which the Chinese spoke of the necessity of war—contrasted with Mr. Khrushchev's impassioned evocation of the perils of nuclear war and his insistence that he was absolutely sincere about disarmament ("the only true humanism") and co-existence—in the end had their effect.

The upshot was the celebrated Moscow Declaration, which was a compromise of sort, a papering over of the cracks. The Russians won, at least for the purposes of the declaration, their main points. But, to satisfy the Chinese, they had to lay a heavy emphasis on the revolutionary dynamic. The struggle for the soul of the Communist movement still goes on. (London Observer Service.)

On a Hyphen Built for Two

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the administration changed hands last month, there was some speculation that it would break up one of . . . Well, I was tempted to say "one of the best acts in show business," but that might not be a proper way to refer to two of our leading lawmakers.

To be on the safe side, I had better just say "break up the briefing team composed of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck."

This team was formed during the latter part of the Eisenhower administration to brief newsmen and television cameras on what transpired at the weekly White House legislative conferences.

It put on, if I may now lapse into show biz vernacular, a splendid performance. Several TV critics said the Dirksen-Halleck briefings were even better than the Huntley-Brinkley reports.

But when President Kennedy moved into the White House, he decided, for reasons of his own, to do his legislative conference with the Democratic leadership.

This was what gave rise to speculation that the Dirksen-Halleck tandem, having been deprived of bookings at the executive mansion, would drop the hyphen and go their separate ways, like Martin and Lewis. These rumors, I am pleased to report, were ill-founded. Dirksen and Halleck are still as hyphenated as ever, although they now use the capitol rather than the White House as a backdrop.

They have embarked on a new series of weekly briefings to present the GOP view of Kennedy's legislative proposals. If it had a regular time slot and a commercial sponsor, it might be called the "Ev and Chaz program."

First Dirksen ups to the microphones (there were nine of them at the briefing the other day) and speaks his piece, sonorously and full-bodied but with a glint of humor, as is his custom.

Halleck, meanwhile, stands at his side, impassive and, it would appear at times, impatient.

Then Dirksen steps back, palms together at chest level, and beams benevolently while Halleck takes his turn.

Dirksen is roundabout. Even his criticisms carry a hint of the beatitudes. Halleck is direct and more bellicose. Where Democrats are concerned, his tolerance level is barely visible.

If, together, they spot a flaw in a Kennedy proposal, Halleck rubs it with sandpaper while Dirksen applies polish; on some spots, Halleck uses a mustard plaster whereas Dirksen prescribes an unguent.

In short, a Dirksen-Halleck briefing is both instructive and entertaining, but one thing—rather puzzles me. I never know whether the hyphen is holding them together or keeping them apart.

RED CHINA
UN ENTRY MUST WAIT

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Gordon Green indicated Tuesday night that Canada is not prepared under present circumstances to support Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Addressing the board of directors of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, he took note of recent suggestions that Canada should recognize the Peking regime and support its entry into the UN.

Mr. Green said Red China has made clear that it will not accept recognition unless its claim to Formosa is also recognized.

"That we are not prepared to do," Mr. Green declared.

— Sales, Gas Tax Up

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotians have received bad news from their Conservative government — an increased sales tax and the highest gasoline tax in mainland Canada to help pay for expanded highways and hospital programs.

Premier Stanfield said in the legislature's Throne Speech debate the gasoline tax will probably be increased by two cents to 19 cents a gallon.

The existing three-per-cent sales tax would probably be increased to five per cent.

Current gasoline prices in cities are 45.9 cents a gallon for regular and 50.9 cents for premium. Country prices are about two cents a gallon higher.

Mr. Stanfield said the three-per-cent sales tax, on most items except food, will fall about $4,500,000 short of hospital needs in 1961.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Buy While Stocks Fresh, Plump

There are now some fine looking tubers of gloxinias and begonias in the plant stores.

Those gardeners who wish to enjoy the gorgeously colorful blooms this summer should make their purchases now while stocks are fresh and plump. The sooner the tubers are started into growth, the better the results.

The tubers of both these lovely plants can be started in either of two ways.

They may be pressed gently into flats of barely dampened peat moss or vermiculite, the horticultural form of vermiculite, or a mixture of sand and peat moss.

The rooting mixture can come well up around the sides of the tubers, since some roots may be formed there.

65 DEGREES

A temperature of at least 65 degrees Fah. is needed for starting, and a tepid water mist spray over the tubers each morning will help.

When roots have formed there will also be top growth noticed, and potting individually is required.

Use pots three and one-half or four inches in diameter, just large enough to accommodate the tubers, and a soil mixture light and porous in texture. One half peat moss, a quarter of screened compost and a quarter of rather coarse sand will encourage a well developed root system.

SMALL POTS

The second method is to put gloxinia and begonia tubers into the small pots to start, but the soil mixture is not quite so fast at root forming as the rooting mixture previously described.

Once the tubers have started growth, they must be placed where they will receive strong daylight but not constant sunlight, and the temperature may be dropped to around 60 degrees Fah. for the greater part of each 24 hours. Watering is kept to a minimum until growth begins to fill the pots with roots.

When these small pots are almost filled with roots, shift into a five or six-inch pot.

SYNOPSIS — The active storm which moved to the lower coast Sunday has moved inland and is causing considerable precipitation in the interior. This system will move into the prairies during the day.

A ridge of high pressure that is following the system will bring considerable improvement to coastal weather this afternoon and to interior weather tonight. However, a new disturbance in the Pacific will be close enough to the coast Thursday to spread cloud and rain to western regions by the afternoon or evening.

This continuation of storm activity from the west should serve to hold the cold Arctic air over northern B.C. from spreading any appreciable distance southward.

CHURCH FILLED

'Carl Pendray Built A Better Victoria'

Victoria is a better community because of the lifelong efforts of the late John Carl Pendray, his mourning relatives, friends and business associates were told Tuesday by Rev. Dr. F. E. H. James.

The minister's funeral service oration in Metropolitan United Church referred to Mr. Pendray's community service as a former mayor, ardent supporter of the tourist industry and head of a leading Victoria manufacturing plant, British America Paint Company.

The church was filled with mourners and large banks of floral displays. Leading citizens of the community were among the pallbearers and a long procession of cars followed the hearse to Ross Bay Cemetery where last respects were paid at the graveside.

Honorary pallbearers were R. W. Mayhew, F. N. McGregor, F. W. Kemp, W. H. Gravin, H. B. Elworthy, R. L. Shaw, W. H. Lawson and George I. Warren.

Active pallbearers were C. L. Loughnane, A. W. McIntyre, Percy Ross, R. H. Griffiths, Gordon Rawnsley and W. H. Newcombe.

GIRL SHOT FOR PUSHING HER SISTER

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — Twelve-year-old Diane Hill was shot to death Sunday by a visitor at her home who became enraged when she pushed her younger sister and made her cry.

Police said a visitor at the Hill home, Preston Bostick, 50, of West Chester, told them he became enraged when he saw Diane push Linda, 5, and went to his car, got a gun and shot her.

Bostick fled after the shooting but surrendered an hour later in West Chester.

Investigators said he had been visiting the girl's mother, Mrs. Margaret Hill.

DIET CLAIMS 'REASONABLE'

OTTAWA (CP)—Examination of dietary formulas now prominent in the Canadian market indicates the advertising claims made on their behalf are reasonable, Health Minister Monteith said Monday.

He was replying in the Commons to Frank Howard (CCF-Skeena) who had asked about investigation of Metreol and other slimming food preparations.

Analysis indicates the advertising claims are reasonable for the average persons, Mr. Monteith said.

Black Charges Interference By Strachan; Ignores McKay

By FRANK BUTTER

Welfare Minister Wesley Black Tuesday raged at Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, accusing him of interfering in his department's business, but he also conceded there is a slowdown in "preventive" welfare services.

Mr. Black's two-hour speech to the legislature was part of a defence of government policy, part-attack on Mr. Strachan. "Anyone would think I give kids old razor blades to play with, put sand in their candy, put ground glass in old people's sugar," said Mr. Black, commenting on Opposition charges.

Shouted Down

When Mr. Strachan tried to win admission that information bulletins on welfare circulated by the CCF were accurate, Mr. Black shouted him down.

"You screamed and yelled all day yesterday. So keep out of my speech."

Mr. Black said the B.C. government's welfare services are second to none in Canada, citing increased budgeting for the welfare department and plans to increase staff.

However, he did not once mention the name of Ruby McKay, nor her criticisms, issued after she resigned as child welfare superintendent last year. Miss McKay said there was inadequate staff and money for a satisfactory program and that government policies were restrictive.

Progress Ignored

Mr. Black said her own annual report for 1960 shows "progress" and this had been ignored by Opposition critics. General welfare standards, he said, should be tailored to the individual receiving assistance.

Mr. Black said his department follows national research paths to define these standards, and is constantly researching in B.C.

But he had a word of caution: Every new demand for service is assessed in the light of all demands on the taxpayer and these demands, believe me, are constant.

Mr. Black said every government in Canada and the United States is facing increasing demands for more welfare services.

"These demands cannot be met totally by any government."

"We must always bear in mind, however, that prevention is one great step in any service. Unfortunately in times of stress, and all must agree that unemployment today is a stress on our economy, certain services must take precedence over others in order that immediate need may be met."

"This means a slowdown in some of our preventive services must be accepted," said Mr. Black.

He did not define these preventive services. However, he added that "We do not leave that particular item in abeyance. We plan for its reconstruction in the future on an even stronger basis."

It was Mr. Strachan's complaint Monday that pensioners were victims of a new, stricter means test, that drew a note of bitter sarcasm from the minister.

"The violins were playing Mother Macree," he said. "If somehow you do not become premier of the province, I suggest Hollywood. . . The violins were playing on the Easting E for emotion."

Mr. Black said the government plans "as soon as it is feasible" to abolish counting 5 per cent of assessed value of real estate as income for elderly people seeking supplementary pension allowances.

Other welfare plans he disclosed:

A $30,000 grant to the Victoria Family and Children's Service for expansion of the Sevenoaks home for the emotionally disturbed;

A $50,000 grant to the Vancouver Children's Foundation for a similar purpose;

Establishment of community welfare committees to review cases;

Hiring 60 new staff, including a co-ordinator of juvenile delinquency committees;

A plan to rehabilitate "unemployables" to useful jobs in the community, which had already started in Nanaimo and would continue with surveys in other areas.

Mr. Black said government spending on welfare has increased 134 per cent since 1952, from $21,549,636 to $50,438,030—the gross total, including federal aid, estimated in the new budget.

He said social allowance rates have increased from $40 a month to $66 for a single person; from $62.50 to $103.80 for man and wife. Supplementary allowances, paid by B.C., had gone up from $10 to $24 a month.

Irked by Bulletin

What aroused his ire first was the CCF information bulletin, distributed last year, giving in detail the amounts to which various categories of citizens are entitled. Mr. Strachan said at the time the CCF was publishing the figures because the Social Credit government had refused to do so.

Mr. Black said the bulletin "flooded" B.C. welfare offices with people seeking aid who were not eligible.

"Are you suggesting the bulletin is not true," called Mr. Strachan.

"No," answered Mr. Black. "It's based in your own manual," said Mr. Strachan.

"What do s that prove," said Mr. Black, turning to Speaker Hugh Shantz.

"That the leader of the opposition was interfering in the administration of my department to which he has no right."

Mr. Black was enraged as Mr. Strachan pursued the issue.

"Keep out of my speech," he cried.

"Just letting the people know what you should have let them know," said Mr. Strachan.

"He doesn't happen to be the minister of social welfare," said Mr. Black, "he's not over here, thank God."

Means Test Clash

They clashed again on the new means test for pensioners.

Mr. Black said the new regulations are adapted from those in CCF Saskatchewan.

"That's not true," said Mr. Strachan. "One is based on annual income, the other isn't."

"I'm informed that this is what is being used in Saskatchewan," said Mr. Black.

Mr. Black took another whack at the opposition leader for reading a letter Monday saying all unemployed persons receiving social assistance were to lose cards entitling them to free medical care.

"That was a complete misunderstanding," said Mr. Black.

He said the Saanich social welfare administrator, Frank

Heaton, had got it all wrong, but was a good worker.

"He's a municipal worker; I have no responsibility for him."

He accused the opposition leader of reading the letter for political capital.

"If there's anything profitable politically, by hook or by crook, they'll do it."

Speaker Hugh Shantz asked Mr. Black not to use such unparliamentary language.

War Declared

Mr. Black said the B.C. government has declared war on unemployment, but the federal government, which is responsible, is not pulling its weight.

He said Ottawa refused last December to allow social assistance cases to work for their money when B.C. asked if they could.

Mr. Black attacked the principle of "the dole."

"The dignity of man certainly makes it essential that he must work," he said.

Speaking of his staff, Mr. Black said, in answer to criticism that it has deteriorated, that all welfare positions should not be held by people "with professional status."

He said his staff is put "where their talents and experience can best be used."

Mr. Black said problems of child welfare are centred about disintegration of families through new "pressures" and economic hardship and insecurity.

The government handled $340 children in conjunction with the children's aid societies in 1960, he said. Of these some 1,900 were either returned to their homes or placed for adoption.

None Exported

He denied some reports that B.C. children have been "exported" to the U.S. This was only a recommendation, he said, and no children have yet gone there. One was placed with a Canadian family living temporarily in the U.S.

The B.C. government, he said, provides service to every citizen in need.

"We must also remember," he added, "the taxpayers of our province also expect and are entitled to a portion of their tax dollar directed toward the construction of roads, of bridges, of schools and other capital works."

He concluded: "The welfare program in this province is second to none in Canada and this government with its dedicated staff will continue this program, with its humanitarian approach, to meet the needs of those who seek it—always of course bearing in mind the taxpayer of this province who must meet the cost of all government services."

Oil Firms Hike Production Plans

Times Business Editor

First indication of the major oil companies' attempting to comply with increased production request of the federal government under its "national oil policy" is seen in changes in February nominations for Alberta crude.

Alberta Conservation Board reports total nominations for the month for crude, condensate and natural gasoline have been boosted to 447,557 barrels daily.

Original nominations for the month were just 425,557 so the new figures represent an increase of about 5 per cent. This is also an increase of 17.6 per cent over February last year. Heaviest increase came from Imperial Oil, leader in the fight to save the Montreal market for foreign crude, with a boost of 8.9 per cent. B.A. upped its figure by 4.9 per cent while other majors will take much smaller increases.

Name of new company which will be formed by McGavin Bakeries Ltd. and Canadian Bakeries Ltd. will be McGavin-Toastmaster with James McGavin as chairman of the board, Canadian Bakeries president D. A. Ross as vice-chairman and McGavin president A. M. McGavin as president.

Parent company of Canadian Bakeries is Maple Leaf Milling Co. which is expected to announce plans for a merger with Toronto Elevators Ltd. before the end of this week.

Decrease in sales of building materials last year was blamed by Dominion-Far and Chemical Co. Ltd. president W. N. Hall for drop in profits.

Total sales at $215,116,592 compared with 1959 sales of $219,293,198. Mr. Hall said that building materials were expected to sell better this year.

Net earnings of $10,079,345 — $1.43 a share — compared with $11,230,918 last year.

Sales for 1960 broken down by divisions were building materials, 30 per cent (off 5 per cent); chemicals, 26 per cent (up 2 per cent); and pulp and paper 44 per cent (up 3 per cent).

Canadian Car Co. Ltd., subsidiary of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd., has been given a defence contract to build 20 prototype Bobcats, light armored tracked vehicles.

Open tenders will be called in about two years to build 480 vehicles if they are found suitable.

Canadian branch of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith plans to introduce an American type monthly investment plan in Canada.

It would be a monthly investment plan allowing investors to buy as little as $40 worth of stock quarterly and could give the mutual funds a bit of a run for the investors' money.

The purchaser would declare his intention of investing a certain sum of money, from the minimum $40 quarterly up to any monthly sum, but no contract would be involved and the investor could stop, skip a payment or sell out at any time.

There would be only regular commissions to pay and no service or management charges.

This would be a monthly investment plan, not an installment plan but a pay-as-you-go plan. Investors could buy fractions of shares, that is buy dollars worth of shares like a motorist buying $2 worth of gas rather than so many gallons.

This is the sort of plan which has been often discussed by Canadian stockbrokers but the mechanics have always seemed too costly. Merrill Lynch, with its tremendous facilities in New York, could probably make an automatic process of the plan using electronic computers to handle the bookkeeping.

Bell Telephone of Canada has applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for approval of capital stock issue up to 2,150,000 shares. Last Bell offering was March, 1959, when shareholders were given rights to one for seven at $33. The board will study the terms and conditions within the next few weeks.

D. R. Abbot, manager of the Victoria office of Sauron and Erie, Canada Trust, is attending a four-day company senior management conference at the Seignior Club, Montebello, Quebec. En route to the conference he stopped at head office in London to attend the annual general meeting of the firm.

New Plan to Save Famous Brewery

NEW YORK (AP)—A union-management agreement has been made in an effort to save the Jacob Ruppert brewery from liquidation.

The late Jacob Ruppert at one time was the owner of the New York Yankees ball club.

The plan involves voluntary layoffs averaging 10 per cent of the work force. It is expected to cut the 83-year-old firm's labor costs by $1,000,000 a year.

The union submitted the plan as a counter-proposal to one which management proposed—elimination of 48 jobs and a 10 per cent wage cut.

STORE SALES UP

OTTAWA (UPI)—Department store sales in the week ended Feb. 4 were up 8.5 per cent from a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics has announced.

All regions shared in the increase with gains ranging from 19 per cent in the Atlantic provinces to three per cent in Manitoba.

B-A OIL SHOWS PROFITS JUMP

TORONTO (CP)—British American Oil Co. Ltd., had net profit of $30,802,000 or $1.51 a share in 1960 compared with $25,602,000 and $1.25 in 1959.

E. D. Loughney, president, said that the improvement in earnings during 1960 was largely due to increased sales of natural gas and to approximately $2,000,000 realized on the sale of long-term investments and the company's tank car fleet.

CPR HURLS CHALLENGE AT B.C.

'Try Out Plan on Your PGE'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway has quietly challenged the B.C. government to try a freight rate experiment on its own Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

The CPR tossed its dare to B.C. in its final argument to the MacPherson Royal Commission on transportation. In his written argument, CPR vice-president Ian Sinclair suggests that the PGE is the ideal place to try out B.C.'s plan for a brand-new cost-oriented freight rate structure. The plan was advanced before the royal commission last year by the B.C. government. "It should... be noted that B.C. is in the fortunate or unfortunate position of being the sole owner of a railway—the PGE," said Mr. Sinclair.

He says there are "obvious advantages" in trying out a cost-based freight rate structure on the PGE, which runs from West Vancouver to the Peace River country of north-eastern B.C.

If there are dislocations and dissatisfaction, then shippers can let the PGE owners—the provincial government itself—know about them quickly.

I HAVE A PROBLEM

I bought a four-unit apartment on Oak Bay Avenue from a smooth-talking salesman. The apartment is in good condition but the payments are too high. I paid $32,000.

You could make money with this suit if you:

1. Get the unit at a much lower price, which I am willing to do, and live in one suite, or
2. Bought up the second mortgage.

I will consider trading for land, property or mortgage paper.

By TED SMITH

NEW YORK (AP) — The word for Maribel Vinson was vivacious, meaning full of life. From the time she first achieved sports renown with a third place in Olympic figure skating in 1932 behind famed Sonja Henie to her latest coaching triumph when her daughter, Laurence, won the North American title, she lived fully.

She kept her trim figure even with advancing years, and her warm, wide, almost toothy smile was as well known at rinks around the world as her throaty, rich voice.

Life held a great deal for her. She won the U.S. figure skating championship nine times and brought up a family of skaters. She achieved fame as a coach, and her protegee, Tenley Albright, won the 1956 Olympic crown at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

Her greatest hope was centered on her slim and pretty daughter, Laurence, who seemed almost a copy in 1961 of the Maribel of 1931.

Under Mrs. Owens' hard-driving coaching, Laurence won the United States and North American crowns in recent days and was on her way to challenge for the world title when tragedy struck in Belgium. She, Laurence and another daughter died in the plane crash that took 72 lives.

Mrs. Owens, formerly a newspaper woman in Boston, served as figure skating expert for The Associated Press at the last four winter Olympic Games.

Scoring in figure skating is the most complicated computation in sports. It depends on percentages and ordinals, and skilful evaluation of a series of scores from 11 or so judges. Usually the results of an Olympic competition aren't known for hours after the competition ends, but Maribel could figure it out in a jiffy.

Those who worked with her at the 1956 games in Cortina d'Ampezzo will never forget, however, her anxiety over the outcome of the pairs.

She figured out quickly that Elizabeth Schwarz and Kurt Opel of Austria were the winners and The Associated Press sent out the story. Then another wire service reported Frances Dafeo and Norris Bowden of Toronto as winning.

Maribel stuck to her guns—but on refiguring she backed down on the extent of the margin.

For nearly two hours she paced the AP office in a made-over hotel room at Cortina while the officials worked over the computing machines. In the end she was vindicated. The Austrians won with 14 places and 11.31 in points against 16 and 11.32 for the Canadians.

On my desk this morning was this note:

"Maribel Vinson Owen called at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday—said she would be at the Yalta Hotel, Prague, through the championships—leaving Tuesday."

BOSTON SCOUT LEARNS YOU CAN'T BUY FANS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Anybody who thinks the humor has gone out of hockey hasn't been around Manitoba's kid leagues.

Fred Kinash, scout for the last-place Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, asked a small boy to run an errand at the Olympic rink Tuesday night. When the boy returned, he said: "Here's 10 cents, compliments of the Boston Bruins."

"You can have the dime back," said the boy with a frown. "I don't like the Boston Bruins."

And when officials in Manitou, Man., checked the visiting Atoms so they could send the boys to the right church Sunday, one small boy was asked his religion.

ANOTHER SLANT

By OSCAR FRALEY

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The slender little man sat hunched over, squinting through the strong sunlight with his bright blue eyes and nodding vigorously.

"I think," said Jack (Doc) Kearns, jabbing his cigarette in the direction of Ingemar Johansson, "that he'll knock the other guy out."

The "other guy" is, of course, Floyd Patterson, from whom the Swedish Iron Man will attempt to capture the heavyweight championship of the world at Miami Beach March 13.

"You must be kidding," said someone.

"No, I'm not," said the little septuagenarian who piloted Jack Dempsey to the heavyweight title on another sun-drenched day at Toledo 42 years ago. "I think this guy has got the killer instinct you need to pull it off."

Johansson, working in a sun-shaded ring in a palm-surrounded glade a few hundred feet from the ocean, staggered his spar-mate with a stiff right hand, leaped forward eagerly and then pulled back.

"See what I mean," barked the 79-year-old Kearns. "He was going to go in and polish off that guy. He looks like a guy filled with hate to me. Like one of the old-time fighters."

The "old-time fighters" live robust and alive in the mind of "Doc" Kearns. They should, for among his "tigers" he numbered, in addition to Dempsey, such as Abe Attell, Benny Leonard, Jackie Fields, Mickey Walker, Mushy Callahan, Les Darcy and Archie Moore.

"On the whole they don't build them that way any more," he explained as the wind made the palms do a can-can. "In the old days, a guy got knocked down and he came back tougher than ever, rough and full of hate. These days they get knocked down and they've had it."

"Not this guy, though," he added, pointing again toward the slugging Swede. "He doesn't say much, but I have a feeling he thinks a lot about getting flattened by Patterson and it's a thing that's growing and building inside of him until he's ready to explode. I look, the way he's training, for him to really go in there winging punches."

That, says Kearns, is what Johansson is going to have to do if he hopes to regain the crown from Patterson.

"He can't hope to box him, and I don't think he will," Kearns analyzed. "He's got to go in there throwing 'em from the outside and he's training as if that is exactly what's on his mind."

Kearns was cautious about naming a round, hedging that "it could be real early if this guy lands one of those right hands." But he insisted that, if Johansson arouses the tiger within himself, he could upset the 3-to-1 odds which say that Floyd will win again.

"He looks hungry to me and that's a good sign," Kearns asserted. "You know, that's the trouble with fighters today. They're not hungry. Back in the old days they'd walk three miles to school, walk three miles afterwards, and then hold down a job on top of it."

"Today, just like my kids, they're not hungry," he added sadly. "One of my boys started engineering, now he's at Tulane studying to be a doctor. The other is at Stetson studying to be a lawyer."

"And," he brightened, "that's okay, I guess. I've always needed a doctor and a lawyer—particularly a lawyer." Kearns, who made—and spent—millions during a fantastic career, turned back to the ring and, when the work-out ended, nodded once more and said with satisfaction that "Johansson sure looks better than he did the last time."

Chinook Club Sets Meeting

Members of the Chinook Club, the organization open only to anglers who have earned Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association buttons for landing big salmon, will hold their annual general meeting Saturday night at the Monterey Restaurant.

Following the pattern of recent years, the Chinook will tend to the business of the annual meeting between a dinner, which starts at 7, and a dance.

Included on the meeting agenda are election of officers, reading reports on 1960 activities, presentation of trophies and discussion of plans for the coming year.

Tickets, which cost $2.50 and must be picked up by Thursday evening, may be obtained at 1225 Government St. or 1007 Hillside Ave.

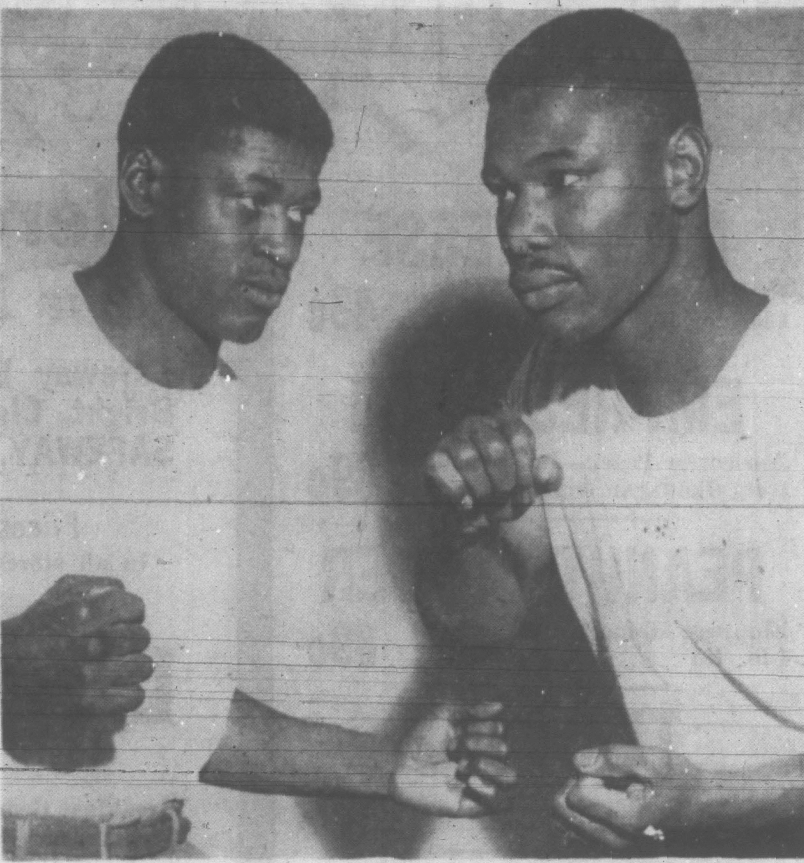

YANKS HIGH ON ROOKIE

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. (UPI)—Rookie Deron Johnson keeps looking like Hal Chase at first base for the New York Yankees in Florida but that doesn't mean a thing to Bill Skowron, who keeps sitting tight in his campaign to get more money.

Maybe it's pure coincidence that the Yankees keep talking about Johnson's chances and Skowron still hasn't signed his contract.

The "Moose" however, is a bit of a worrier and any day now he may show up at St. Petersburg, Fla., from where he's vacationing in nearby Miami to see for himself what all the shouting is about.

Not that the 23-year-old, long-ball hitting Johnson is likely to take over the first

PUNCHING AT SAME TARGET

They won't be swinging punches at each other at Memorial Arena Thursday night, but Los Angeles boxing buddies Floyd Buchanan (left) and Franklyn "Deacon" Haynes will step through the ropes with similar plans. Rugged, 170-pound Buchanan will be hoping to chalk up victory over former world middleweight champion Bobo Olson in 10-round main event, and Haynes, 185, will be shooting for win over knockout artist Floyd Palmer in heavyweight eight-rounder. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

For Right Price, Floyd Will Face Bull, or Bobo

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Boxers were discussing boxers and the name of a prominent fighter was brought into the talks. Recently, somebody said, he turned down a $40,000 guarantee.

Floyd Buchanan sadly shook his head and whistled. "For that much money," he said, "I'd go into a ring with a bull."

Yet it wasn't too long ago when the same Floyd Buchanan, then an aspiring teenager from Los Angeles, quit the beak-busting game. It happened after his first amateur bout.

"We had this bout in Bakersfield," Nick Villafior, his manager recalled. "He said he was quitting because he figured he was the victim of a bad decision."

It took time, but Buchanan was back. Now the 24-year-old light-heavyweight is looking forward to the most important bout of his career. That comes Thursday evening at Memorial Arena when he takes on the rated Carl "Bobo" Olson.

And if Olson, the former world middleweight king, has learned anything from the story of Buchanan's young life it could be that Floyd hates to lose.

"It's a tough life," says Buchanan of boxing. "It's tough to get good bouts. Some of the top-ranked boys won't meet you because they're scared of being upset. Others won't fight anybody except those ranked in the top 10."

BOBO BEST YET

That's why, the solidly-built 170-pounder said Tuesday, "this fight with Bobo is a best opportunity for me. He's the best I've met yet."

That covers a ring career that includes about 30 amateur and 20 pro bouts. His professional record shows him with 18 victories, including seven by the knockout route. For two years—1954 and '55—he was the best of his class in the U.S. Airforce tournaments.

The record books won't show the night he was chased out of Philadelphia gym after sparring with middleweight contender Joey Giardello.

Villafior brought that up and recollection of the incident seemed to embarrass Buchanan.

BOY WAS TOO ROUGH

Giardello, in training for his meeting with Britain's Terry Downes last October, took on Floyd as a sparring partner. Floyd's handlers showed Floyd the way to the door after the first workout.

"Floyd got a bit rough and I don't think Giardello liked it," said Villafior, "so they chased him out."

Buchanan, who arrived in Victoria at noon Tuesday with Villafior and a heavy weight Franklyn Haynes, wrapped up his heavy training before leaving Los Angeles. Like Olson, however, he planned a light workout today.

LOPES VS. WALKER

Olson and Buchanan are matched in the 10-round main event Thursday. In a pair of eight-rounders, it will be heavyweights Floyd Palmer, Portland, and Franklyn Haynes, Los Angeles, and lightweights Joey Lopes, Seattle, and Jimmy "Bang Bang" Walker, Portland.

Four-round openers match middleweights Al Alexander, Portland, and Ernie Gipson, Seattle, and welterweights Junior McCombs, Victoria, and Sonny Horn, Seattle.

Nanaimo Rink Shares Lead in Curling Final

TRAIL—Three rinks were deadlocked for first place as play in the B.C. women's curling final continued this morning.

Tied with records of five victories and one loss were the quartets skipped by Marge Fuller, Nanaimo; Joy Mitchell, Kitimat, and Ina Hansen, Kimberley.

Mrs. Fuller, helped by two of the players who assisted her to the Canadian title in 1957, forced the deadlock Tuesday night by handing the Mitchell rink its first defeat of the bonspiel.

Mrs. Fuller was a surprise loser in the fourth round of the round-robin playoff between 11 zone champions, dropping a 10-8 decision to Catherine Wright of Vancouver.

Winners at Uplands

Low net winners in the women's greensome contest Tuesday at Uplands Golf Club with a score of 71½, were Mrs. G. M. Coxworth and Mrs. H. E. Hing. Runners-up were Mrs. K. S. Lawson and Mrs. E. B. Livingstone with 75.

FIGHT RESULTS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Rafael Mota, 129½, Mexico City, defeated Luis Lela, 129½, San Antonio, 30. LONDON—Ken Watson, South Africa, outpointed Byron Hollingsworth, Trinidad, 8. (Lightweights.)

CALGARY—Ronald James Leopold figures he has served his apprenticeship and now is ready to take out his journeyman hockey player papers.

The tall wiry winger reached a milestone in his minor-league career Tuesday night, scoring his 100th Western Hockey League goal—all for Calgary Stampeders in 160 games during the last three seasons.

Leopold, a native of Calgary, has enjoyed nothing but success since his graduation from Kamloops Chiefs of the Okanagan Senior league. Last year he scored 31 goals and finished second to linemate Lou Jankowski in club scoring.

This season he has been in the thick of the battle for the

Teepees Stretch Hoop Lead

Victoria High's junior hoop squad appears to be following in the sneaker tracks of the senior Totems.

Wednesday at Oak Bay, the Teepees stretched their Inter-High School Junior Boys' Basketball Hoop lead to four points by clipping their closest rivals 39-20.

Both the Totems and Teepees have lost league games only to Royal Oak.

Rick Augmundson personally outscored the Oak Bay crew with 21 points.

At Mount View, the senior cagers sharpened up their shooting eyes by whipping North Saanich 47-26 in an exhibition tussle before the Lower Island tournament, which starts Friday.

Rick Skermer and Gary Cooper paced the Hornets' scoring parade with 15 and 12 points, respectively.

Totems Rally For Tie

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Seattle Totems, down two goals after the first period, fought back to salvage a 2-2 overtime tie with Vancouver Canucks in a Western Hockey League game before 4,461 fans Tuesday.

Totems entered the game, their last here this season, needing a victory to pull into a third-place tie with the Canucks. Both teams are well off the pace set by first-place Stampeders.

Dave Duke and defenceman Larry Cahan scored the Vancouver goals with Tommy McVie and Don Chiupka replying for Seattle.

Both netminders, Claude Evans of Vancouver and Bev Bentley of Seattle, played outstanding games. Bentley handled 32 shots successfully and Evans stopped 26.

Centre Guyle Fielder of Seattle assisted on McVie's 25th goal to increase his league-scoring total to 71 points and move into a tie for the lead with teammate Rudy Filion.

VICTORIA CURLING CLUB NEWS
SHORTY SPIEL
This coming Saturday night, Feb. 18th, a mixed "Shorty Bonspiel" for members and their guests, will commence at 7 o'clock. The teams may consist of two men and two ladies, but if only one member of a team is a lady, she must play third. There will be three events, A, B and Consolation, with prizes for each event. Entry fee is $1.00 with a limit of 16 rinks. Refreshments and a dance will follow for those not in the finals of each event.
The Jr. Boys' and Girls' Inter-High School Bonspiel will be completed this week with the finals scheduled for the following week. CJVI is sponsoring the boys and the Victoria Curling Club the girls.
Victoria Curling Club can be proud of the calibre of Jr. Curlers they have sponsored in past years. The Pacific Coast Jr. Curlers Association have 23 registered clubs and in 2 years they have been operating. Victoria entries have been well represented! This year Roger Pick and his Victoria rink took top honors over 100 entries. In the Jr. Girls Invitational Bonspiel, Donna Robertson and her Victoria lasses have taken top honors two years in a row.
The instructors at Victoria Curling Club can take a bow for the way they have brought these junior curlers along, because in a few years they will be the representatives and a further credit to the parent club.

Korea-Like War Congo's Future?

Western Europe Fears Collapse Of UN Efforts to Block Outbreak

LONDON (AP)—Western alarm mounted today as Communist support for Patrice Lumumba's political heirs in The Congo raised the spectre of a Korea-like war in the heart of Africa.

Newspaper headlines in most of Western Europe showed concern at the Soviet Union's offer of "all possible assistance and support" to the Lumumbist government of Antofne Gizenga, controlling a large part of the northern Congo from Stanleyville.

Fears were expressed that the UN attempt to prevent civil war in The Congo would collapse, that Russia and its Communist allies would supply Gizenga's forces, and that the United States and its allies would have to bulwark the Leopoldville government of President Joseph Kasavubu and Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu or see the vast territory go to the Communists by default.

President Nasser's United Arab Republic officially recognized Gizenga's regime Tuesday night as the legal government of The Congo. Red China quickly followed suit.

United States officials were reported counting heavily on dozens of smaller states, particularly in Africa, to rally to the defence of the UN.

The future of both The Congo and the United Nations appeared to be at stake. The Congo now could rapidly become the arena of intensified East-West conflict; the United Nations could be virtually paralyzed as a peacemaking organization.

The turbulent situation confronts the Kennedy administration with a crucial test of its diplomatic skill and policy resources when it is still less than a month old. It injects an element of deep uncertainty into the prospects for a meeting later this year between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Sputnik 'Splits'; Rocket Burns Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. space agency said Tuesday the sputnik from which Russia launched its shoot for Venus has broken into two parts that are circling the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the rocket body which sent the sputnik into space is believed to have re-entered the atmosphere.

But in Paris, French officials privately described Hammarskjold's conduct of the UN Congo operation as "totally impotent." One official said France could not see its way toward backing the UN in the face of Russia's disavowal of Hammarskjold Tuesday.

France has been cool to the UN operation all along and has abstained on key votes regarding Hammarskjold's mandate.

WORLD SKATING EVENT 'ON' DESPITE TRAGEDY

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The world skating championships will go ahead as scheduled here next week despite the Belgian plane crash which wiped out the American team, an official said today.

"The organizing committee met this afternoon and decided the championships should go on as scheduled despite the tragedy at Brussels today," a committee member said.

SHE HAD PERSONALITY TO MATCH SPEED, GRACE

Maribel Triggered a Huge Splash

By PHIL LEE

When you saw Maribel Vinson Owen skate in the days of her youth you never forgot her.

She was so alive you could not think of her being dead as she is today with her two daughters following the air crash near Brussels.

I know when she appeared as guest star at the Winnipeg Winter Club carnival back in 1932 she left the sell-out crowd limp from applauding, demanding encore after encore.

She had just returned from the Olympic Games in Europe where she had placed third—behind famed Norwegian doll, Sonja Henie and Fritzi Burger—higher than any other American woman skater before her.

SHE HAD SPEED

She was all grace on the ice but she had something so few possessed in those days—speed.

But it was her personality that captured the crowd as much as her skill. Her smile was as gay as a bucket of champagne and her body in motion was rippling poetry.

with a touch of the cat thrown in for excitement.

Following the final night's show she hit the club's wind-up party like a bombshell. She was here, there and everywhere, seemingly all at once. She played no favorites. She danced with the baldies and the paunchies along with the admiring young men at her feet. Even the wives loved her.

Somewhere along about three in the morning she slipped away from them all without their knowing. Then, gradually, the word got about that the dark-eyed-gal from Boston had changed into a swim suit and was enjoying the refreshing green waters of the club's pool.

Unfortunately I had been dragged protesting home long before then by my parents. But the talk about the club next day was full of how some of our august members went about proving beyond doubt that knighthood was still in flower. Upon seeing Maribel in the pool they had jumped gaily in to join her—black ties, white ties, dinner jackets, tails and all.

They said that as angry as the wives were over the ridiculous sight of their fully-clothed huddles bobbing about in the tank, they still managed

Collection Bought

The British Columbia government is spending a total of $70,000 to acquire a large collection of paintings, papers, Indian crafts and anthropological specimens.

Black announced in the legislature Tuesday that this is the total price for the collection from the estate of the late W. A. Newcombe, of Victoria.

He said it is hoped to display some of the articles—which include Emily Carr paintings—so MLA's can see them before the session is over.

LYNN SEYMOUR SPARKLES
B.C. Ballerina Triumphs Again

LONDON (Reuters) — Frederick Ashton's new version of the French ballet, "Les Deux Pigeons," scored a triumph at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, Tuesday.

It was staged at a gala performance attended by Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones, the Princess' husband.

The first ballet to be created by Ashton for the Royal Ballet's second company, it was a triumph not only for himself but for three young dancers—Lynn Seymour, 21, of Vancouver, and two Britons, Elizabeth Anderton, 22, and Christopher Vable, 20—and for the French designer, Jacques Dupont.

Both Lynn Seymour, as the fiancée, and Elizabeth Anderton, as the Gypsy girl, responded well to Ashton's planning in roles which he had created for them. Christopher Vable also did well, though the role of the boy was originally intended for Donald Britton, downed by influenza a few days ago.

Miss Seymour, the only Canadian in the Royal Ballet, got the opportunity of displaying the range of her talent by being given touches of comedy as well as highly romantic moments. Her mimal pas de deux with Vable was finely executed.

The evening added much to her rapidly growing reputation. Only two months ago she won a big success—also with Vable—in Kenneth Macmillan's "The Invitation."

The highest temperature recorded in Canada is 115 degrees and the lowest, at Snag, Yukon Territory, in 1947, is 81 degrees below zero.

WINNIE'S PET FLIES COOP

This Reducing Plan Really Works
 "The Naran Plan is what I have been hoping for. I was just about convinced that I was fat for life when a friend told me about your plan. To my surprise I began to get results at the end of the first week and have been losing ever since. I am sure that I can now keep my weight where I want it." — W. Montgomery, Montreal, P.Q.

Overweight people generally fall into two classes, those who have tried to reduce and failed and those who have never tried at all. You do not have to be in either group. Make up your mind that you are no longer going to suffer the discomfort and embarrassment of being overweight. You are not far from a drug store, walk over and ask for the Naran Plan and begin today to lose weight while eating three meals a day. It is that simple, after you have lost weight you will wonder why you didn't do it sooner.

SEWING MACHINE GIMMICK $200 Just Went Down the Drain

By GORDON BELL, Times Business Editor

Here's some bad news for a number of Greater Victoria residents who have recently bought sewing machines from a home demonstration firm for $340, plus heavy financing charges.

A comparable machine, perhaps a little better, could have been bought from a number of established retailers for $200 less.

There's no way of telling exactly how many people have been fast-talked into buying the Japanese-made sewing machines but complaints and inquiries have been received by the police, the Chamber of Commerce and The Times. One Colwood purchaser is contemplating legal action based on misrepresentation. A Brentwood buyer stopped payment on his down-payment cheque and plans to return his machine. A widow with three children in Central Saanich is in a desperate quandary—she can't afford the $16 a month for 24 months which she was talked into agreeing to pay.

So far the only setback suffered by the sewing machine vendors was a $10 fine last week for doing business in Central Saanich without a business licence. The fine was paid and a licence taken out at the same time.

The gimmick in this selling game is that purchasers of the machine are assured they can almost make it pay for itself. For every prospect furnished by the purchaser to the company who also buys a sewing machine, the company pays a "commission" of $30.

WILLIAM HAWKINS

Present Ferry Service Ample Says Hawkins

Victoria does not need more ferry service to take care of the expected flood of tourists, Victoria and Island publicity manager William Hawkins indicated today.

He took issue with a suggestion last week by Chamber of Commerce tourist group chairman Walter Dodsworth that the provincial ferries should operate to Seattle to help transport tourists in 1962.

He said the CPR had informed him that it would operate a once-daily service between Victoria and Seattle this summer. This, along with other ferry services, would provide a daily capacity of 33,400 passengers and 3,408 cars.

"It would seem that we are well prepared to take care of an unusual number of visitors," said Mr. Hawkins.

DOUGLAS VOWS: 'Health Plan For Certain'

REGINA (CP) — An impassioned Premier T. C. Douglas vowed Tuesday in the legislature Saskatchewan will get a medical plan "as long as I've got the breath in my body to put it through."

He spoke heatedly after Opposition leader Ross Thatcher ended his marathon speech in the throne speech debate.

The premier attacked the concept that the government did not have a mandate from the people since it had been elected with only 41 per cent of the popular vote last June.

He said this idea was being furthered by the Liberals and their "satellite newspapers."

He denied he had told meetings during the election campaign the CCF would legislate medical care if it got 51 per cent of the popular vote. He said he had been asked if the NEW YORK (AP) — A 60-year-old contractor, who ignored 187 traffic tickets over a 10-year period, Tuesday was fined $9,550 and sentenced to 185 days in the workhouse.

Mike Mellon faces an additional 366 days imprisonment if he fails to pay the fine. He pleaded in vain to Chief Magistrate Abraham Bloch, who imposed sentence, for "time to work it out so I can pay my fine."

Mellon also had other troubles. Police said he is wanted in a bad cheque case involving a $250 furniture bill and for smoking in a subway.

BIG DIFFERENCE

The sewing machine demonstration comes next and the prospect is told that the machine is an "American-engineered, automatic" product which sells anywhere for $340. Fact is it is a Japanese-made, semi-automatic (there's a world of difference between fully-automatic and semi-automatic) machine which reputable dealers sell in the $140 price range.

Then comes the pitch about the purchaser recovering a large part of the cost through the "commissions" earned by sales to friends. In actual fact the customer would need to be successful in persuading at least eight friends to buy the machine to make up even the $200 mark-up plus high finance costs involved in the transaction. And Better Business Bureaus across the country have shown time after time that except in rare cases seldom does more than one person get roped in by each customer.

When a purchaser signs a contract he pays $19.95 down and agrees to pay $16.21 a month for 24 months for a total payment of $408.09. For this he gets a Japanese-made sewing machine with a guarantee which is good only as long as the sales firm stays in business. For $140, plus moderate finance charges over a shorter term if desired, the customer could have a comparable machine with a guarantee backed by an established, reputable dealer.

FLOOD THREATENS LAKE RESIDENTS

A combination of warmer weather and heavy rain could cause flooding at Cowichan Lake as bad as the inundations which forced evacuation of several families in January, RCMP warned today.

The lake level is still several inches above normal for this time of year, they said, and warm rain on the heavy snow pack in surrounding hills could lift it to dangerous heights.

Rain Tuesday brought disaster "pretty close" by Tuesday night, they said.

In mid-January floods forced closure of sawmills at Youbou and Honeycomb Bay, isolated Youbou as a bridge was washed out at Meade Creek, forced closure of the Lake Cowichan post office, and caused minor damage in the liquor store at the village.

MONTE ROBERTS

The Voice of the magazine subscription salesman is abroad in the land.

I have this on good authority, not only from friends who have listened to The Voice, but also from reading the public prints and from personal experience.

To be factual, I have had personal experience with The Voice since the dear, dead days beyond recall, when The Voice would announce:

"I'm workin' me way 't'roo collidge. If you should wanna buy a su'scription f'r a year, it'd put me over me quatar, an' I could get meself eddicated."

Now, my friends tell me, and the public prints tell me, hardly any of the magazine subscription salesmen are working their way 't'roo collidge.

Many of them need only 5,000 points more to send them on a cruise around the world.

Some of them need LESS than 5,000 points to send them out of this world.

Other of The Voices announce they are on a sales training course, and as the first step, they are to introduce themselves to 10 people in this neighborhood, and to get each of the 10 people to sign his name, right here, like, and this entitles you...

There are various other gimmicks employed by The Voices of the magazine subscription salesman abroad in the land, and all of them are peachy-dandy, rehearsed to the nines, and polished to a high gloss of double talk.

But what I am waiting to hear is a report of The Voice using a brand-new gimmick, as follows:

"I want you should buy this here magazine for two bucks because if you do I get to keep a buck, and boy, do I need the dough."

On the basis of such a pitch, even I might be tempted to heed The Voice of the magazine subscription salesman which is now abroad in the land.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

J. Stewart Smith was elected president of the Pacific Club at the club's annual meeting Tuesday. Elected vice-president was Major R. A. C. Hogarth.

Committee members for the year are past-president D. E. Johanson, Jack Phillips, Walter Rowe, Gordon Page, P. J. Sinnott and P. A. Hagerty.

Temper may get frayed in the legislature but the B.C. government has issued a proclamation extolling the virtues of brotherly love.

A cabinet order today proclaims "Brotherhood Week" in the province from Feb. 19 to 26.

This is in conjunction with the National Brotherhood Week sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

He faced one charge of theft over $50 value and two of theft under $50 value, his first offences.

Magistrate William Ostler, in passing sentence, considered the fact that Pearsall has a wife and four children, was unemployed, and spent nearly a month in custody awaiting disposition of his case.

Pacific Piledriving Co. of Victoria was awarded a $111,990 contract for construction of a boat harbor at Westview near Powell River, the federal government announced today.

Major Project Going Before CIDC Meeting

Nine Months Of Planning

A three- or four-year Greater Victoria beautification project costing up to $800,000 is expected to be recommended Thursday at a meeting of the Capital Improvement District Commission.

The commission has allotted only about $80,000 of the $200,000 B.C. government grant it was given for the 1960-61 fiscal year, chairman J. Everett Brown said today.

He said he hopes the rest will be accounted for in a new project which has taken almost nine months of study and planning.

He said he cannot disclose details of the project until first it wins CIDC approval, and second a go-ahead from the provincial cabinet.

THREE YEARS

However, the project in mind is a major one, he said, and may take three or four years to complete.

The provincial government regularly grants $200,000 a year to the CIDC, and if the project uses up four years worth of grants, it will cost $800,000.

The CIDC is composed of municipal representatives and two government appointees. Its projects are for the general beautification of the capital area.

Usually when the cabinet approves a CIDC project, it pays the appropriate funds out of the $200,000 CIDC grant.

UNCLAIMED

Despite the fact that some $80,000 worth of plans were approved in the past nine months, the financial statement of the government for that period shows the entire $200,000 unclaimed.

Mr. Brown said he would look into that, but that he is sure the CIDC will get and use its full grant.

He conceded the commission has been slow in deciding its major project for the year, but it required a great deal of planning.

In the meantime such small projects as paving of the scenic drive at Cattle Point in Oak Bay and paving work on Simcoe Street had been initiated.

Major projects suggested as possible for the CIDC recently include improving Douglas Street. Approaches to the city with landscaping and boulevards and extensive development of the "Cathedral Hill" area which includes the new Law Courts building now under construction.

Subsidy Renewed For Texada Ferry

The B.C. government has renewed for two years a $15,000 subsidy to the operator of the Texada Island ferry to Powell River.

A cabinet order today says that H. C. R. Davis, of Nanaimo, will get that amount each year in quarterly instalments, as he has since 1957.

The order renews Mr. Davis' ferry charter.

Big Victory Won By Defiant Dairy

Milky Way Dairy Ltd., 815 Beckwith Avenue, Tuesday won its battle with the provincial government over milk cartons.

The victory came when Magistrate William Ostler ruled in Saanich police court that a regulation of the Milk Industry Act is ultra vires—invades the area of federal jurisdiction.

The magistrate subsequently dismissed a charge against the dairy of illegally using U.S.-half-gallon measure milk cartons.

The charge was laid after the dairy refused to comply with an order of the minister of agriculture that the sale of milk in 64-ounce cartons be stopped. A Canadian half-gallon contains 80 ounces.

According to the regulation in question, only Imperial measure must be used in the dairy industry.

For the defence, W. R. McIntyre argued that federal legislation requires all transactions and packaging to comply with the Canadian Standard Measure based on the International Kilometre.

There is no reference in the federal laws to Imperial Measure.

Crown counsel Louis Lindholm submitted that Imperial and Canadian Standard measures are for all practical purposes identical.

"It is immaterial whether Imperial and Canadian Standard measures are identical," Mr. Ostler said.

"Imperial measure is a

Two 'Drifters' Admit Robbery

Deny Using Force On Shipyard Man

Two young men accused of robbing a shipyard worker who was dragged from his car early today, pleaded guilty in city police court to robbery with violence or threats.

Oril Coss, 27, and John G. Day, 19, no fixed address, denied using violence or threatening harm and claimed the $5 allegedly taken from their victim's wallet was actually a smaller amount.

William Campbell, 34, of 174 Joseph, went to work today at VMD Outer Wharf yard, apparently uninjured.

Because of the discrepancy between the facts told to detectives and what the accused said in court, Magistrate William Ostler remanded both to Thursday to enable Campbell to be called.

Det. Norman Bath said Campbell was forced from his car parked on Johnson near Blanshard and one of the accused told him:

"Don't holler for the police. I have a gun."

One of the men slapped him, Det. Bath said.

They took $5, or about that, from Campbell's wallet and put the wallet back in the man's pocket.

Coss said:

"We didn't touch him or push him at all. We didn't touch the man at all."

Day said there was no gun involved.

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady said the accused had come to Victoria from Port Alberni and one (Coss) had recently been in the U.S.

Detectives said Coss had served a prison term for an offence committed at Spokane, but was a Canadian citizen.

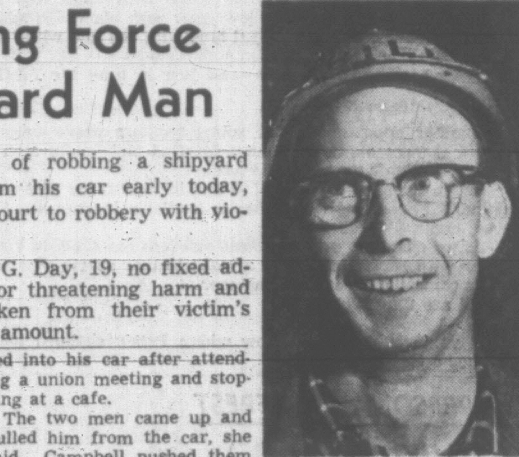

Mrs. Campbell said her husband told her he had just stepped into his car after attending a union meeting and stopping at a cafe.

The two men came up and pulled him from the car, she said. Campbell pushed them away and ran across the street, but he was tripped and the pair held him down, taking his eyeglasses and searching his wallet.

Then they threatened him and ran off, she said.

Campbell jumped back into his car, drove around the block to Yates where he spotted Cons. Elmer Keleny, who had seen two men running west on Yates.

Detectives and patrol cars were alerted and a half-hour later, at 1:50 a.m., the two accused were arrested where they had registered at a Broad Street hotel.

Probe Fails To Uncover Fire Cause

Investigation into a fire last Saturday aboard the destroyer escort HMCS Skeena has so far failed to reveal cause of the blaze or to make a possible estimate of the damage.

The ship is in drydock at HMC Dockyard, undergoing repairs to her port propeller, damaged when it struck a dead-head off the west coast of Vancouver Island during the anti-submarine exercises last week.

IN RADIO ROOM

Initial stages of the naval investigation entailed cleaning up the area of the fire, which was centred in a radio room on the port side, forward of the officers' wardroom on the main deck.

Amount of electrical equipment which will need replacing will determine the cost of repairs.

As the equipment is complicated and expensive, cost is expected to be heavy.

Propeller repairs will be completed without removing the wheel in drydock, and the Skeena is scheduled to be undocked Friday to rejoin the Second Canadian Escort Squadron.

Store Looted In Skylight Burglary

An unspecified quantity of clothing, shoes, hardware and miscellaneous merchandise was stolen by burglars who broke through a skylight at Spencer's Stores Ltd., 1420 Douglas, Tuesday night.

Detectives said the means of entry was the same as in the last major burglary at Spencer's more than a year ago.

Access to the roof was from a fire escape at the rear.

Once through the skylight into a third-floor store room, the thieves climbed down a ladder and forced a door leading to the upper and main merchandise floors.

SUITCASES TOO

Rifling the stock, they loaded up and carried the loot away in suitcases, also taken from stock.

The store was trying today to itemize and evaluate the loss.

Five coin-operated vending machines were forced and a separate amount reported as $66 in change was stolen in a burglary of Gibson's Bowldrome, 914 Yates, Monday night.

Police said the burglar went through a window from an adjoining roof, taking coin boxes from two machines in a billiard room and three others on the top floor.

Fifty dollars in silver was taken from its hiding place in a refrigerator, which was forced open, and a metal cashbox containing $16 in nickels was taken.

Strong Plea To Save Coast Strip

The shore from Port Renfrew to Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island should be preserved for public recreation, Bruce Scott told a meeting of the Victoria Natural History Society Tuesday.

Mr. Scott, a former resident of Bamfield, said the wild and rugged coast with lakes only a short distance inland, possessed tremendous tourist and recreational possibilities.

He noted that at one time the federal government planned to develop the area into a federal park, but due to a disagreement with the provincial government, dropped the scheme.

"There is everything there," he said. "A variety of ocean beaches, lakes, rivers, meadows, timbered land, sheltered inlets and magnificent scenery."

He said it is up to the public to see that west coast remained unspoiled.

GADGETS FOR CRIPPLED

'While-You-Wait' Service in Town

By HAL JONES

Twenty-two Victoria "shut-ins," suffering from arthritis or rheumatism, will get a welcome visit this month from Miss Katharine Lichtensteiger, one of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's occupational therapists.

Here now, Miss Lichtensteiger will visit patients throughout Vancouver Island, helping them train themselves to live as normally as possible.

SELF-HELP AIDS

There are, altogether, four occupational therapists based at the society's centre in Vancouver. Using a van, they travel the province in turns visiting patients and supplying self-help aids.

Arthritis sufferers sometimes have difficulty doing normal every-day things, such as putting on shoes. With a little ingenuity, Miss Lichtensteiger and her colleagues improvise gadgets—fixing a rod to a shoe horn—to get them out of these difficulties.

VAN DONATED

The van—which was donated to the society—is equipped with a work-bench to enable a therapist to make these aids.

The van and therapist visit the Island once a year to work in conjunction with the local C.A.R.S. clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Litter Only, Please, Garbage Not Wanted

A new weapon was chosen today by city council's public works committee to launch an other offensive against street litter.

It recommended installation of 10 new street litter cans, at a cost of $1,000, along Douglas Street in a trial run. The cans are modern in design and have a raised cover attached.

This will allow people to deposit litter in the cans without the wind blowing it back out, said city engineer J. C. Garnett.

The design also would discourage some persons who, at present, are dumping their household garbage into the open street cans instead of taking it to the garbage wharf.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said the new cans cost three times as much as the present ones.

"But they're just not effective, so what's the use of continuing them," replied Ald. M. J. Griffin.

Committee also decided to use signs warning the public that littering streets is a punishable offence. Wording of the signs will be decided later.

But a proposal to flush streets was turned down after Mr. Garnett reported it would cost $200 a day for the commercial core or $445 daily for the entire downtown area unless expensive equipment was purchased.

TOO COSTLY

"That's almost a mill just to do the core," said Ald. Edgelow. "It's just too prohibitive to consider."

"We'll just have to appeal to merchants and the public to stop littering the streets. We'll also have to appeal to people outside the city to stop bringing their garbage in and dumping it into the street cans."

Ald. Griffin said prosecutions were needed to combat litterbugs.

Seven-Hour Day, Wage Hike Sought By B.C. Carpenters

B.C. Carpenters, including about 600 in the Greater Victoria area, are seeking a seven-hour day plus a wage increase, following preliminary talks at Vancouver recently between the provincial council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Heavy Construction Association of B.C. and the Amalgamated Contractors' Association.

Employers have warned they cannot afford increases this year and are proposing a lower pay scale for interior areas to conform with lower mainland rates.

The carpenters are seeking a 21-cent per hour increase. Present scale in Victoria is $2.84 an hour, in Vancouver $2.92 an hour.

City Dressmaker Member Canadian Couturier

By ELIZABETH FORBES

One of two designers in western Canada included in the exclusive Canadian Couturier group at Montreal is Mrs. Ursula Redwood of Victoria.

Honor came to her after she submitted a cocktail dress to the group for its approval last autumn.

"I got a letter one day, saying you are accepted," she tells you with just the slightest accent to prove she is one of the clever new Canadians who have come to us from Europe.

Letter, received in November, also asked that Mrs. Redwood submit five designs for the spring showing of the couturier group.

"They were to be in by the beginning of January," this clever young woman says with a reminiscent smile. "that meant I must ship them before Christmas."

Designs had to be created first, she points out; the dresses made and then shipped.

"I did it," she says proudly, "but I had to work night and day."

In this group was a jacket and dress, an evening gown and coat, a cocktail dress and coat, a sports dress and a play suit.

Last named appeared in full color in a recent issue of this newspaper's Weekend magazine.

Mrs. Redwood studied dressmaking and design in Germany, where she was born. She took her master's examination at the Helle School of Design, where qualifications included at least five years of practical experience before the degree was granted.

First workshop was at Detmold, near Hanover. "It was in a basement and so very tiny," she remembers, "but I was lucky. There was a music academy quite near and the artists made good customers. They all came."

According to this soft-spoken woman, the tiny workshop suddenly became "too much plush . . . too easy."

TO FIND NEW IDEAS

"I found I wanted to get out and see something else, find new ideas. So I set off, by myself, to come to Canada . . . it was not too hard, you know. I had learned English at school."

First stop was Vancouver where Mrs. Redwood spent three and a half years "jumping from one thing to another but learning all the time."

Laughingly she tells you that she had determined to give sewing up entirely. She was going to do other things.

This mood lasted one week. "Then I was back in it again and I realized I would never be able to stop."

She came to Victoria a little over two years ago and immediately decided it was the right place to live. Now, with her parents, who came from Germany two years ago, and her husband, she lives at Sidney "where we have a garden."

It's in this garden or perhaps sitting above one of the many beaches of the Saanich Peninsula that Ursula Redwood creates—in her mind—her designs.

"When I have a design in my head, then I come in to my workshop and sketch it on paper. After that comes the work of making."

She is busy now on designs for the fall showing of the couturier group. "But I will have more time now and, as one of the group, I now may choose my materials from the new ones produced by Canadian manufacturers who work with the couturiers."

On top of her work as designer, dressmaker and tailor, Mrs. Redwood adds teaching at Victoria night schools.

"I love to teach," she says, "it's such a thrill to see someone who has no idea of dressmaking and even cannot use a sewing machine, gradually learn to make a dress."

Classes include advanced dressmaking and tailoring. Both men and women attend. There is also instruction in pattern making and drafting.

It is in these classes that Mrs. Redwood thinks she has received most recognition since she was named to the Canadian Couturier Group.

"My students seem to be most impressed," she says.

Stage First Style Show

History was made in the Nurses' Residence at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Tuesday, when alumnae of both local hospitals combined for the first time to present a Valentine tea and fashion show in aid of the building fund of Victoria College. Sum of $500 was realized from afternoon and evening presentations.

Models were Mrs. A. B. Thompson and the Misses Sheila McCann, Arlene Craig and Fern Adam, Royal Jubilee Hospital nurses, and Mrs. C. R. Seyfort, Mrs. G. Webb, Mrs. M. Kersey, Miss E. Ebbs-Cannan and Miss Mary Spilsbury, nurses from St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dramatic white stole the show with Kennedy pink, named after the "first lady" of the United States, trailing a close second. Vintage shades were still in evidence but had been softened and toned to flattering hyacinth and similar shades.

WHITE AND GREEN

Again and again, snowdrop white and spring green were combined in results that were breathtakingly feminine. Many of the tall, tall hats were gay with French chiffon roses, emphasizing the heralded trend to the "lady-like" look in spring styling.

Three-piece suits were given prominence, favorite in these being hard-wearing knitted suits. Easy-to-travel fabrics such as Arnel and Terylene appeared again and again.

Pure silk made a glamorous comeback, sometimes in the floral prints and often in exciting geometrical designs.

Styles were by Scurrahs and Hats Toojays. Commentator was Helen Biernes.

Mrs. Peter Coste and Mrs. Wilfred Davenport were co-conveners, with Mrs. J. Laidlaw and Mrs. H. Woodhead in charge of tickets.

Mrs. Ian Donaldson and Mrs. C. Browning were in charge of publicity, Mrs. John Pite and Mrs. D. Eden refreshments.

Nursing students from both hospitals acted as serviteurs. These were the Misses Keatha Davis, Jocelyn Cooper, Ann Cheetham, Doris Baker, Ruth Solmie, Sharon McKim, Mary Sparling, Heather Creed, Ellen Aitchison, Marleen Parfitt, Donna Coleman and Judy Dennis.

"The best to you each morning"

DEAR ABBY

You Can't Mother!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son is going to marry a girl from off a farm. We like her very much but I wish she had better taste. She plans on having a dressmaker copy a wedding gown from a picture she cut out of a magazine five years ago! The gown looks somewhat dated to me. I'd be much happier if she would go to a store and buy a modern, ready-made gown.

Our friends are quite fashionable and we don't want our son walking down the aisle with a bride who looks like a country hick. How can I get this message across to the girl without hurting her feelings?

MOTHER OF THE GROOM

DEAR MOTHER: The selection of the bridal gown is the privilege of the bride. Bridal gowns need not be "new" to be lovely. (Many brides proudly wear their grandmothers' gowns.) Trust the girl's judgment. Her "taste" was good enough to select your son, wasn't it?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on this: I say it is improper for a married woman to greet another woman's husband with a kiss. Furthermore, if a man really love his wife, he doesn't have to hold still for kisses from other women.

My husband says it doesn't mean anything and is not worth making an issue of. I refer to the "Hello, darling!" business with open arms and hugs and kisses. I am sick of it. I'd like your ideas on the subject.

RESERVED.

DEAR RESERVED: No man has to hold still for a kiss on the lips unless he wants to. But a kiss on the cheek is hardly grounds for a battle.

DEAR ABBY: I have thoroughly enjoyed your letters concerning office Christmas parties and might I add a little word of comfort to the wives who think they are so abused? My husband works for a large company and they do not wait for a big event like Christmas—they have a party for everyone who has an anniversary, farewells, promotions, etc. At least once every two weeks my "big executive" has his fling. All I can say is more power to the dumb blonde secretary who can squeeze a few treats out of him—that's more than I have been able to do for 20 years.

A PARTY-WIDOW.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BROWN EYES: Don't confess "all" to a man who is as unforgiving as your boy friend appears to be.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Well, Marathoners, How Do You Stack Up Now?

Today I want to check with those women who joined my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon in January. Most of you now have been following Marathon directions for about a month, some for a little shorter time and others a bit longer.

By now you should begin to see how happy you will be by the end of this eight weeks. If you have not accomplished as much as you hoped, here are a few things to ask yourself.

"Have I really stuck to 1,200 to 1,400 calories a day or has it been hit and miss, dieting a few days and then skipping a few?"

Don't kid yourself about this. Look the facts in the face.

Social life makes it hard to stick to a reducing diet for any length of time but you can take care when dining away from home. You can take carrot sticks and skip the calorie-packed canapés at cocktail parties. You can take some of everything at a dinner party but just play along with the rich items and don't take seconds.

If necessary, be brutal about it. You might say that you are lowering your blood cholesterol (that seems quite in vogue now). Perhaps this is more acceptable than to say you are dieting to lose weight and you probably are lowering your blood cholesterol with your reducing diet. If any of you missed Marathon and would like to join, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

'TAINTED CONTRACT'

High Pressure Deal Cancelled by Court

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Appeal has ruled that a combination of misrepresentation, high-pressure salesmanship and exorbitant prices has made a sales contract invalid.

A judgment says a Winnipeg monther and her daughter need not pay $342.99 for a quantity of goods even though they signed a contract to do so.

"The contract was tainted with misrepresentation," the judgment said. "The sale thereunder was affected by a combined process of pressure and deception; the signatures of the defendants were procured by deliberate non-disclosure of certain very pertinent facts."

W. W. Distributors and Co. sold sets of cookware and flatware and an electric skillet to the women and sued them when they refused to pay. The judgment said the articles were valued at $145.95 by a price expert.

Actual sale prices was $239.50, but service and other charges brought it up to $342.99.

"The general rule that a person who signs a contract will be bound by its terms is not inflexible, and may be departed from in appropriate cases," the court said.

The salesman contacted the daughter after reading her engagement notice in a newspaper.

During the demonstration sale, attempts to ask questions were blocked by speedy interruptions by the salesman or his manager and the mother was tricked into signing, the court said.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bill Jaffe, age 15, Lansing, Mich., for his question:

Why is the piranha so dangerous?

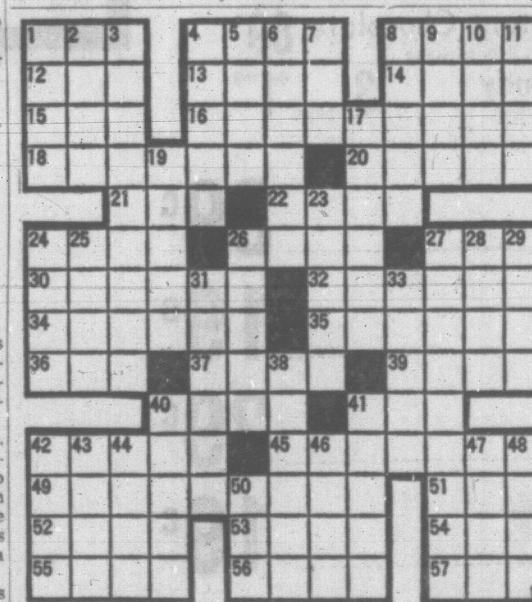

He is no bigger than a stack of two or three 10-inch dinner plates. Yet the little monster is more dangerous than a man-eating shark, more deadly than Moby Dick, the man-hating whale. A skindiver is safer with a giant sting ray or an electric eel than he is with the piranha. Even one piranha is a menace when met in the water, but the little horror always hunts with a large pack of his blood-thirsty friends and relatives.

The piranha is distantly related to the dainty minnow and the lazy catfish. But you would never know it from his looks or from his character. He is a flat, rather round fish with stubby fins and tail. His fishy scales are silvery blue. There is a red streak on the lower fin and at certain seasons the underside of the male fish is streaked with vermilion. His worst feature is

ESCAPE ROUTE—Hole at ground level in lower right portion of farmhouse wall provided escape for former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba and two aides last Thursday. Lumumba and companions were later murdered by villagers who received $8,000 from Katanga government as reward. Slaying of Lumumba has resulted in a new crisis in strife-torn Congo. (AP Wirephoto.)

Why Must We Lose Homes? Ask Enraged Arrow Residents

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A cry of outrage is sounding along British Columbia's Arrow Lakes.

Residents of communities that dot the shoreline of the lakes have come to the belated realization their homes and farms are going to be flooded because of the plan of development for the Columbia River. Letters are flooding in to MP's and MLA's, all asking: why must we lose our homes?

The fate of the Arrow Lakes communities was determined almost a year ago, during the course of the protracted Columbia River negotiations, by a representative of British Columbia.

As it happened, the High Arrow dam was not even mentioned at the time. The discussion centred on other dams, miles away, in the East Kootenay Valley, the most easterly of the deep valleys that run in north-south lines through the British Columbia interior.

Never Disturbed

Negotiations were at a relatively early stage at that time. Ottawa, under the urging of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and the engineering staff of the International Joint Commission, was pushing for a development plan that would not have touched the valley of the Arrow Lakes.

Gen. McNaughton wanted to build a series of dams in the East Kootenay—Dorr, Bull River, Luxor—diversion dams, that would force the flood waters of the Kootenay north, across Canal Flats, into the headwaters of the Columbia River, and on down the main stem of the Columbia.

McNaughton has called the East Kootenay diversion dams the key to development of the Columbia basin. In conjunction with a big dam at Mica Creek, on the Columbia's Big Bend, they formed the foundation of a development sequence

COMPENSATION... $6.8 MILLION

It will cost an estimated $6,800,000 compensation to the Arrow Lakes communities if a High Arrow dam is built on the Columbia River.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston gave the figure Tuesday answering questions in the legislature by Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail).

Mr. Williston said a total of 1,600 people would be affected by the plan, which would mean flooding some 40,000 acres of the Columbia Valley.

The flooding—raising the high-water level to 1,460 feet—would affect 470 occupied homes and 66 unoccupied.

Mr. Williston's answers contrasted effect of the High Arrow with that of a Dorr dam on the East Kootenay communities. The Dorr scheme, rejected in negotiations which led to an international treaty on the Columbia, would have diverted the Kootenay into the Columbia.

Mr. Williston said it would have cost $300,000 more in compensation, or a total of $7,100,000.

The Dorr scheme, however, would have affected the same amount of people, more acreage—a total of 90,000 acres—but only 455 occupied homes, and 34 unoccupied.

Kootenay dams, Libby was essential. Again to quote Mr. Fulton, whose speeches are the first official indication to the B.C. public of the basis on which the Columbia agreement was predicated:

"Since the only other solution of the flood problem downstream at Bonners Ferry is provided by the Libby dam, it became necessary to contemplate Libby if any treaty were to be concluded."

Ottawa made a valiant attempt to modify the impact of the acceptance of the Libby project. It won concession after concession from the U.S. on Libby, and finally wound up with an option clause giving the U.S. but five years in which to make a start on the project. Many senior U.S. officials don't want to build Libby; it is a wasteful, uneconomic proposal.

That decision set in motion a train of manoeuvres that led inevitably to the final Columbia agreement, an agreement previously described here as "second best."

The dream of the engineers was shattered. Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton, in a series of frank speeches in British Columbia recently, put it this way: "Under our constitution, British Columbia is the owner of natural resources lying within provincial borders, and has therefore the right to designate which resources should be developed and in what way. This is the basic reason why the High Arrow is included, and the major dams and diversion of the Kootenay River are not included in the treaty projects."

He has also publicly admitted the salvage nature of the negotiations from that point: "British Columbia having made these decisions, it was then the federal government's task to negotiate within the pattern thus determined. . . . We then had to ask ourselves the final question, does this arrangement still represent an advantage to Canada?" For the record, the federal government does believe, and quite rightly, that it negotiated a good deal for Canada "within the pattern laid out."

Libby Necessary

Here is what happened when British Columbia decided not to build the East Kootenay diversion dams.

For years the U.S. has had a serious flooding problem on the Kootenay, in the area of Bonners Ferry. There are only two ways to control the floodwaters—through the East Kootenay diversion dams, or through a dam at Libby, Montana, a project some interests in the U.S. have been pushing for a decade.

When B.C. killed the East

Mica Creek was the first logical site. As a pure storage project, it could hold back 11.7 million acre feet of storage. But, as a pure storage project, it would lose much of its potential value as the source of at-site power generation; And as a pure storage project it lost much of its attractiveness from a financial standpoint.

If Mica's value as a power generator was to be retained, much of the storage required by the U.S. had to come from another dam. There was only one such dam, High Arrow.

Mica and the East Kootenay diversion dams could have done the job adequately and cheaply, but once the diversion dams were rejected by B.C., it had to be Mica and High Arrow. And High Arrow appears a very attractive proposition. It can provide one-half the required storage, and by the most conservative estimate will pay for itself in terms of downstream benefit power within six years of its completion.

It is a good way for B.C. to make a fast buck.

Few Satisfied

High Arrow's effect on the Arrow Lakes cannot be underestimated. It will flood land from Castlegar to Revelstoke. Water behind the dam will rise and fall anywhere up to 76 feet, leaving mudbanks behind it.

There would have been flooding from the East Kootenay dams

The Queen's Children

(This is the second in a series of five articles by Gordon Langley Hall, well-known author and feature writer, about the children of the British Royal Family.)

The Queen would be the very last person to call her twelve-year-old elder son brilliant. However, everybody who has come into contact with the boy has found him to be extremely intelligent and advanced for his age.

He has a very scientific, inquiring sort of mind, like his father. Mechanical things interest him much more than they do his sister. It has often been said that if Prince Philip had been anybody else but husband of the Queen he could always have earned his own living and made fine use of his exceptional talents. With Prince Charles' present rate of progress it seems that he would be able to do the same.

Educating an heir-apparent to the throne in the world of today is no small problem. Prince Philip desired above all things that his son should be a good mixer and equally at home in all strata of society.

Enjoys All Games

On the other hand, there was the question of Charles' safety. Members of the Royal Family have always been provided with their own personal bodyguards, although the presence of one in a boy's school would be enough to upset any ordinary curriculum. The possibility of the kidnapping of the young heir-apparent could never be ruled out. With the close co-operation of the police and school authorities such problems were successfully worked out.

Both at Hill House, Knightsbridge, the preparatory school where the Prince was first a pupil, and then at Cheam School, a boarding school in Berkshire, Charles' arrival first caused much interest to the general public but the excitement soon died down. Afterwards the boy was left in peace to enjoy the privilege of every youngster — happy, carefree schooldays.

Charles, as his pictures indicate, is a robust and healthy boy. He has a good sense of sportsmanship but can never make up his mind whether he enjoys cricket or football more. One of his most prized possessions is a baseball catcher's mitt which his father brought him back from Chicago. Prince Philip is pitcher for the palace baseball games played during the holidays. "Baseball's a pretty good game," he once commented, "although I may get into trouble with Charles' cricket master for teaching him the rules."

Protocol Out

Phillip taught both Charles and Anne to swim in the pool at Buckingham Palace. Their mother gave them first lessons in horseback-riding. She is said to be a little disappointed that Charles has not inherited her own great love of horses but rather thinks of a horse as a functional animal.

There is some consolation in the fact that Anne adores horses and is never happier than when she is in the saddle. When an Irish farmer sent her a pony and royal protocol demanded that like most unsolicited gifts it had to be returned, the little girl declared, "But I love horses." Royal protocol for once was forgotten and she was allowed to keep it!

A splendid little groom for her father at his polo matches.

PRINCE CHARLES... an inquiring mind

she loves to hear him shout: "Wonderful job. We'll make a groom out of you yet!"

While Anne is on her horse or fishing, Charles goes shooting with his father. He is now the proud owner of a Labrador gun dog, who answers to the name of Flash. Before her marriage Princess Margaret used to join Prince Philip and his men friends for the picnic lunch that is always a feature of their shooting parties.

Looks After Toys

Although some fantastic reports have presented Charles as the owner of almost $100,000 worth of toys, it is not true. His father, whose own family fell on hard times, had few toys as a boy and those he did have were usually of a useful nature. He recalls how happy his childhood was and so Charles' gifts have been carefully and sparingly chosen so that he has been taught to appreciate and look after them.

Both Charles and Anne have been granted the privilege of enjoying everyday amusements outside the palace. They go shopping, enjoy educational visits to museums, and attend specially chosen movies. They even attended a performance of "My Fair Lady" with Miss Katherine Peebles, Anne's governess, and not a line of it was changed. Charles looked very grown-up in his first pair of navy blue long trousers.

Seeks Anne's Help

When it comes to choosing gifts for members of the family, Charles seeks his sister's advice, no doubt trusting to a woman's intuition. Princess Anne is very discriminating when it comes to gift choosing and ponders long before finally making up her mind over what will suit whom.

At a Sandringham fete it took her a quarter of an hour to choose a gift for their mother, declaring in no uncertain terms at someone's suggestion, "Oh, no, that wouldn't do for Mummy."

At last she finally made up her mind and settled for three brooches costing in all $2.75 cents. One was for her mother, another for Aunt Margo (Margaret) and last but not least one for herself.

(In the third article of this series, appearing Thursday, Mr. Hall describes the upbringing of Prince Charles' sister, Princess Anne.)

TRANS-CANADA IN B.C. COST $235 MILLION

The Trans-Canada Highway will cost a total of $235,000,000 in B.C. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi disclosed Tuesday.

He was answering questions in the legislature put by Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

B.C. has so far spent $175,123,950, said Mr. Gagliardi. The federal government has contributed $74,719,461.

Completion target date is Dec. 31, 1963.

SPEED COLUMBIA STUDY U.S. SENATORS URGE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Senate foreign relations committee is being urged to speed up study of the Canada-United States Columbia River Treaty.

Senator Mike Mansfield, Senate majority leader, told The Canadian Press Tuesday the demand for speedy action comes from a group of northwestern senators who want the treaty passed as quickly as possible. Mansfield said the senators have drafted a letter they will present to Senator J. William Fulbright, foreign relations committee chairman, asking for early hearings on the treaty.

The treaty was sent to the Senate for ratification by the previous Eisenhower administration a month ago.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons Tuesday it is impossible at present to fix a date for submitting the U.S.-Canada Columbia River development treaty to Parliament for approval.

When the treaty was signed last month, he promised that it would be submitted to Parliament.

Opposition Leader Pearson asked whether the motion would be made before an agreement is reached between the federal government and British Columbia for carrying out treaty terms.

"It is too early as yet to say," Mr. Diefenbaker replied.

Diver's Death Ruled Accident

Death of 22-year-old Victoria skindiver David Dorman, 2872 Inez, in Finlayson Arm Sunday was ruled "accidental drowning" by coroner Dr. J. H. Moore.

There was no blame attached in the accident, which occurred when Dorman, wearing full rubber diving suit, face mask and snorkel breathing tube, was spear fishing with eight other divers of Victoria Sea Searchers Club.

It was believed by his diving friends that Dorman asphyxiated when he held his breath too long in one of his descents.

ment with a new set of payroll deduction authorizations.

The offer was made January 26 following a statement by the premier that some members of the association had told him they preferred to pay dues individually, the statement said.

The premier also said no one outside the executive had asked reinstatement of the check-off, stopped by the government while the association was a member of the B.C. Federation of Labor, which supported the CCF party's election campaign. Later the association withdrew from the federation.

The association said in a letter to the premier less than 1 per cent of the members preferred to pay individually. It added if the premier had doubts about the feelings of the members, new payroll deduction authorizations members would be free to sign or ignore would be distributed.

Metro Report Released After Session

The B.C. government's special report on metropolitan government likely will be held back until after the session of the legislature, Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black said Tuesday.

The report was made for the government by a committee in Greater Vancouver, headed by lawyer Hugo Ray, QC.

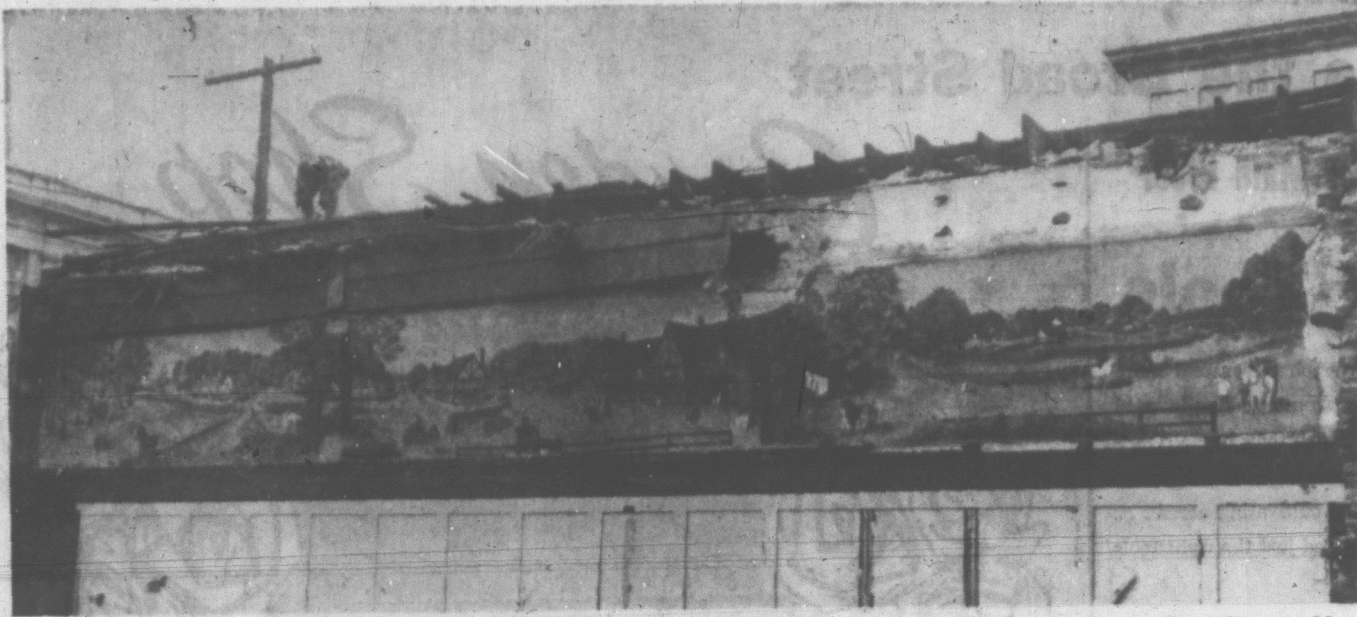

Mr. Black said he has read it once, has passed it to the cabinet, but has held no discussion with cabinet members about it.

"Will it be released during the session? I doubt it. Perhaps after," he told the legislature.

The letter said: "Our feelings toward your people are warm and friendly, but we feel they, too, are in danger as long as preparations for war are continuing on the present scale."

Flood Claims Exceed Gifts

(From Duncan Bureau)

Claims made to the Cowichan Flood Relief Fund to date exceed money subscribed to the fund by more than $2,000. Claims total $8,798, while the fund stands at $6,602. There is a possibility that by the time all claims for damages are submitted—deadline is Feb. 25—they will exceed $15,000.

Fund secretary Art Stevenson said a number of donations are yet to come in "and we'll just have to hope that more contributions are made."

Bulk of the claims, making a total of $6,589, are for structural damage to homes. Other claims: Damage to furniture and personal possessions, $1,613; outside damage, $502; miscellaneous, $93.

City of Duncan residents have made claims totalling $2,134, while Municipality of North Cowichan home owners have submitted claims of $4,054. A single claim from the unorganized area south of Duncan totals $2,610.

DUNCAN—Residents in the Cowichan Station and Fairbridge areas can't be blamed for seeing a little red. Vandals equipped with brushes and a bucket of red paint Monday night made a shambles of 15 mail boxes in the two areas, and left bright red splashes on a dozen or more bridge, highway, street and traffic signs.

Every red trail extends from Koksilah Bridge, a mile and one-half south of Duncan, along the Trans-Canada Highway, up Bench Road, and through Fairbridge.

DUNCAN—Duncan city council has approved three additional tag days for the year.

IODE, Cowichan Chapter, was given permission to hold a tag day for educational and charitable purposes June 10.

Fourth Duncan Scout Troop will be permitted to tag and sell apples Oct. 6 from 6 to 9 p.m., and the following day from 9 a.m. to noon.

CHEMAINUS—Spring came early for Jim Buckner—in fact, last Saturday afternoon.

Fishing in Chemainus Harbor, he hooked and landed a 32-pound winter spring, biggest salmon taken in inside waters in three years.

Mooring with 15-pound test line and 12-pound leader, it took him an hour and one-half to bring the big fellow to gaff.

He fishes Chemainus waters the year round, and landed a smaller spring in the same place the following day.

He has a few words of advice for fledgling fishermen: "Never mind the moon and tides. Just get out on the water and fish."

NANAIMO—Dr. Robert McKeechie of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club was elected president at the annual meeting here of the Council of B.C. Yacht Clubs.

Vice-presidents are Alan F. Taylor, Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and Harold Snider, Nanaimo Yacht Club.

Directors are John Feilden, Capital City Yacht Club; Sheldery Saunders, Nanaimo Yacht Club, and Douglas Turner, Vancouver Outboard Association.

Speakers were Dr. David Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, who discussed government policy in regard to marine parks, and Mr. Snider, who reviewed council activities of the past year.

It was decided to send a representative to the fall meeting of the transport department.

SIDNEY—Funeral services were held here Tuesday for Rudolph Cornelius Maartman, 75, owner of the Gem Theatre, who died in Rest Haven Hospital Sunday.

Born in Fargo, N.D., he was a past master of Duck Lake, Sask. Masonic Lodge, and had been a resident in Sidney for 15 years. He served in the First and Second World Wars, and was a member of Saanich Peninsula Branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

Surviving are the widow, Margaret, at home; a son, Robert, in Sidney; one daughter, Mrs. G. V. O'Brien, Fairly Glen, Sask.; seven grandsons, two brothers, and a sister.

CD ORGANIZATION PRAISED BY BLACK

'Best Defence Is Peace ... But'

The B.C. government believes "the best defence is peace," but it will do all it can to ensure the population survives the threat of attack, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black told the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Black did not mention fallout shelters, but in a brief speech during the budget debate, he stressed the value of civil defence organizations, and of providing emergency government facilities. (He is the minister responsible.)

"Until such time as the possibility of war is farther removed than it is today, then all governments must of necessity take appropriate steps to ensure that government will continue to function and the population to survive," he said.

Fallout shelters were strongly attacked in the legislature last week by Mrs. Camille Mather (CCF, Delta) who said they would be useless in a real nuclear attack.

107 GROUPS—Mr. Black said B.C. has 107 civil defence organizations in its 124 municipalities. Some 4.4 per cent of the population is involved, he said.

"Every municipal government has the responsibility to prepare itself and the public for any emergency which may arise, be it from peacetime disaster or war," said Mr. Black.

This was well proven, he said, in such areas as Duncan, North Cowichan, North Vancouver and Coquitlam in recent heavy rainstorms resulting in floods.

The mayor of Duncan and the reeve of North Cowichan have both reported that their CD organizations were out at the first call and were of immense value in this emergency," said Mr. Black.

SHIPS, PLANES RESUME SEARCH

3 More Bodies Found

VANCOUVER (CP)—An air and sea search for a missing boat that contained eight men when it left harbor Monday resumed today in moderating weather.

The bodies of four of the men on the 40-foot Green Valley have been recovered in a 15-mile stretch between Texada Island, 40 miles north of here, and Pender Harbor on the mainland.

The RCAF Search and Rescue, which expected stormy weather which forced postponement of the search Tuesday to continue, said the weather is good today.

Thirteen vessels and five planes are participating in the search.

The men, four of whom have been identified, were employees of the Green Valley Timber Co. They had left a small logging camp on the island for a regular four-day leave Monday morning.

A breakdown in the camp's power supply severed communications with the Mainland and news of the disaster was delayed for many hours. A body found in the area late Monday was the first inkling something was amiss. Later Monday night an RCAF crash boat travelled to the camp and discovered the tender had met with trouble and had disappeared.

Two bodies were found Tuesday by searching vessels.

Identified as among those aboard the Green Valley when it left in clear weather for Pender Harbor were: Ralph Noble, 34, of North Vancouver, owner of the company; Ken Wilson, North Vancouver; Roger Jensen, 49, Vancouver, and Clarence Nichols, Pender Harbor.

The names of the others were being withheld until next of kin in Eastern Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom were notified.

Alan Erickson, one of two men who remained at the camp Monday, said Tuesday night: "It was just a routine trip. The crew worked 10 days and then had four days off. They go to the Mainland every 10 days for leave and have made the trip many times. I just can't understand how it happened."

U.S. Skaters Die in Air Crash Negro Rioters Disrupt UN Debate

BALCONY BATTLE

18 Guards Injured In Fracas

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—A screaming fist-winged demonstration by pro-Lumumba Negroes that U.S. officials claimed was Communist-inspired disrupted a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today.

It was the wildest melee in UN history.

Some two dozen Negroes began the demonstration in the packed public gallery of the Security Council as U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson defended Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and said Russia's demand for his dismissal was a "virtual declaration of war on the United Nations."

Eighteen UN guards were injured slightly in the fracas. One of the demonstrators who had been struck in the mouth also was treated at the dispensary.

Six men and four women were taken to the security offices and later released after a short time. No charges were placed against them.

DREW KNIFE

One of the rioters drew a knife on a guard but was disarmed.

A UN official said there was a definite signal and when one group of about 50 or 60, almost all Negroes, broke through the public door leading into the spectator section. About 15 got inside and started down toward the area where the delegates were seated.

At that moment, another group seated in the hall, joined in the demonstration.

Two photographers were injured and spectators were jostled as UN guards ejected male demonstrators while their female companions continued to cry "Vive Lumumba!" and unintelligible epithets until the gallery was ordered cleared. All the Negroes interviewed by newsmen said they were Americans.

PRIVATE TALK

Official Washington sources explained privately to newsmen that the demonstration was Communist-inspired and said another was planned for 4 p.m. outside UN headquarters here.

They linked the near-riot with mob violence against Belgian embassies abroad following the slaying of leftist leader Patrice Lumumba in the Congo's dissident Katanga Province.

Informed sources said some of the demonstrators were admitted to the gallery on protocol passes obtained through the delegations of Ghana and Guinea.

After the security council was cleared, the UN headquarters was closed to the public for the rest of the day but the Congo debate continued.

At the UN entrance three demonstrators were arrested for shouting at passersby.

Stevenson, who attacked Russia's Congo policy, apologized to the council for the outbreak "to the extent that Americans may be involved."

Prince Charles, heir-apparent to the British throne, is a bright, inquisitive boy who prefers hunting to horses and leans heavily on his sister, Princess Anne, for advice in buying presents. Canada's Unemployment Registers 15-Year High

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's unemployment jumped sharply upward to 693,000 at mid-January, highest jobless figure for any month in the last 15 years, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The January unemployment figure—amounting to 10.8 per cent of the labor force—was 165,000 higher than the jobless figure at mid-December.

It was 146,000 higher than a year earlier and 56,000 higher than the previous post-war unemployment peak of 637,000, set in March of 1958.

The 10.8 per cent ratio of people out of jobs to the total labor force of 6,396,000 compares with 10.6 per cent at the 1958 unemployment peak. It is also higher than 8.8 per cent in January, 1960, and 9.5 per cent in January, 1959.

While the ranks of the unemployed jumped substantially in the new year, employment was also 47,000 higher than a year earlier, despite a seasonal decline of 199,000.

Picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Jan. 1961	Dec. 1960	Jan. 1960
Labor force	6,396	6,430	6,203
Employed	5,703	5,902	5,656
Unemployed	693	528	547

Of the 693,000 unemployed workers at mid-January, the majority—87 per cent—were men, the same proportion as in December.

Almost one-third had been in the construction industry when they were let out. Another third were in the various service-producing industries. The remainder were mostly in manufacturing and forestry.

Temporary layoffs showed a major jump between December and January, increasing to 63,000 from 39,000.

Of the remaining 630,000 out of a job and seeking work, 71 per cent had been unemployed for three months or less, 18 per cent for four to six months and 11 per cent for seven months or more.

A key point in the labor department's analysis is that the labor force at mid-January was 3.1 per cent higher than a year earlier, while employment was up 0.8 per cent.

The number of women with jobs increased by 101,000 over the year while the number of men employed showed a drop of $4,000.

72 Killed In Belgian Disaster

(Times News Services)

BRUSSELS — Seventy-three persons, including the United States figure skating team, perished today in the flaming crash of a Sabena Airlines jet. Fifty-four Americans and one Canadian were among the dead in the Boeing 707.

The 18 members of the skating team were going to Prague for the international figure skating championships.

Among the dead was Laurence Owen, 16, who won the North American figure skating championship only four days ago.

Disaster struck at 10:05 a.m. as the $5,000,000 plane, its engines sounding oddly, sought a landing in bright sunshine after the flight from New York.

It slammed to earth beside a wood three miles north of Brussels International Airport and went up in flames fed by fuel as the tanks exploded one by one.

ARMER KILLED

All 61 passengers and the crew of 11 died. A Belgian farmer tilling his cabbage patch was struck and killed.

Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 39, of Winchester, Mass., nine time figure skating champion, was killed along with her two daughters who were members of the current team. The girls were Laurence, 16, and Maribel Owen, 20. Mrs. Owen last weekend had seen Laurence in the North American championship at Philadelphia over Wendy Griner of Toronto.

Mrs. Owen and coach Deane McMin of Lomita, Calif., were accompanying the team to Prague. Mrs. Owen's husband died in 1952.

The team is the fifth major sports group wiped out by plane crashes in a dozen years, including soccer teams in Italy, Britain and Denmark. Sixteen members of the California Polytechnic football team were killed in the crack-up of a chartered plane last Oct. 29.

GOING TO FUNERAL

Victoria Maes, 39, only Canadian aboard the plane, was a naturalized Canadian born in Belgium. A tobacco farmer at Vanessa near Brantford, he was on his way to his mother's funeral near Brussels. His wife Rachel was to have accompanied him, but changed her mind.

CANADA TEAM LANDS SAFELY

AMSTERDAM (CP)—The Canadian figure-skating team, which like the U.S. squad was en route to the world championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia, also left New York's Idlewild Airport Tuesday night aboard another plane bound for Amsterdam.

The Canadians arrived at Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam this morning and left an hour later for Prague.

TOP ATHLETES KILLED

U.S. Skaters 7th Tragedy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The death of 18 members of the United States figure skating team in an airplane crash in Belgium while en route to the world championships in Prague is the seventh air tragedy in recent years involving sports teams.

In 1933, two members of the Winnipeg Tilers basketball team lost their lives when a plane carrying the team crashed in Kansas.

Thirty-one persons were killed in a crash at Turin, Italy, May 4, 1949, including championship soccer team all-members of the Italian national soccer team—hailed as the greatest Italian team of all time. It was composed of players from the Torino 11 of Turin, which won the national championship four straight years.

In 1956, five football players, returning from the Shrine All-Star game in Vancouver, were among 62 persons killed in a crash in the Rocky Mountains 100 miles east of Vancouver.

On Feb. 6, 1958, a British airliner carrying Britain's home from Yugoslavia fell and burned at Munich, and among the 21 killed, were seven members of the team and eight British sports writers.

Two sports air tragedies occurred last year.

On July 16, a chartered plane crashed at Copenhagen, killing eight of Denmark's leading soccer players.

On Oct. 29, another chartered plane cracked up in fog at the Toledo airport, killing 16 members of the California Poly football team of San Luis Obispo en route home after being beaten 50-6 by Bowling Green of Ohio.

Britain Supports Dag In Lumumba 'Murder'

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government today made it clear it regards the killing of ousted Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba as murder.

It also made plain its intention of backing the United Nations Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjöld, in the face of Russian over demands over the incident.

The government stand was enunciated in the House of Lords by the foreign secretary, the Earl of Home, who called the killing "a disgraceful episode" and said Britain "utterly deplored" Lumumba's death.

Reading of Home's statement in the Commons by David Ormsby-Gore, minister of state for foreign affairs, touched off a noisy scene.

Labor member Fenner Brockway was greeted by Conservative shouts of "withdraw" and "sit down" when he tried to link responsibility for the Lumumba killing to the Eisenhower regime, Britain and Belgium as well as rival Congo factions.

Finally the speaker, Sir Harry Hylton-Foster, ruled Brockway's reference to the Eisenhower administration "out of order."

HITS AT BELGIANS

Another Labor member, Tom Driberg, accused the Belgians in the Congo of "crawling back again, arming their murderous puppets" such as Moïse Tshombe, premier of breakaway Katanga province, "and instigating violence."

Ormsby-Gore replied that "some of your accusations against the Belgians are wholly without foundation and cannot be substantiated."

Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskill asserted that Tshombe's refusal to see a UN representative meant "the suspicion that Mr. Lumumba was killed on the instruction of Mr. Tshombe's government is in fact confirmed."

Gaitskill also called the Russian attacks on Hammarskjöld "totally unjustified."

BELGIANS SHOT IN REPRISAL

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Two Belgians were reported today to have been shot in the Kasai Province capital of Luluabourg in reprisal for the slaying of former premier Patrice Lumumba.

The reports said Lumumba supporters fired on the Belgians on a cafe terrace when they failed to reply when asked what they thought about Lumumba's death.

The shooting was said to have sent Europeans in the area fleeing to United Nations headquarters at Luluabourg.

STUDENTS GO WILD

Embassies Cringe As Violence Flares

LONDON (Reuters)—Student mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw and set fire to the Belgian Embassy in Cairo today in fresh demonstrations against the slaying of Patrice Lumumba, ousted premier of The Congo.

Yelling students grappled with diplomats in the Warsaw embassy as they ransacked offices and carted documents to a bonfire in the street, splattering violet ink as they went.

"They even went for the women staff," said a diplomat, shaken from the second attack on the Warsaw embassy in two days.

Embassy officials and their secretaries took refuge from flying stones as about 300 demonstrators outside unleashed a fusillade amid shouts of "murderers, murderers."

of the building in a systematic effort to raze it.

Thick columns of smoke poured from the embassy's shattered windows and the street was littered with furniture hurled from second-storey windows.

Crowds stoned the United States information office, United Nations headquarters and the British Embassy.

The demonstrations came in the wake of violent protests Tuesday which left Belgian embassies heaped with rubble and shattered glass in Belgrade, Moscow and Warsaw.

Moscow workers' delegations streamed into the American, Belgian, British and French embassies today to deliver protests accusing these countries of being implicated in Lumumba's death.

UN FLAG TORN

Some 3,000 demonstrators in Accra tore a United Nations flag to bits outside the regional UN offices in the Ghanaian capital. The crowd also demonstrated outside the American Embassy and one man repeatedly fired an old muzzle-loading rifle in the air.

In Paris, club-swinging police clashed outside the Belgian Embassy with a crowd of about 500 members of the French National Federation of African students, who chanted slogans such as "imperialist murderers," "Hammarskjöld resign" and "long live Lumumba."

Oil Firms Hike Production Plans

Times Business Editor

First indication of the major oil companies' attempting to comply with increased production request of the federal government under its "national oil policy" is seen in changes in February nominations for Alberta crude.

Alberta Conservation Board reports total nominations for the month for crude, condensate and natural gasoline have been boosted to 447,537 barrels daily.

Original nominations for the month were just 425,557 so the new figures represent an increase of about 5 per cent. This is also an increase of 17.6 per cent over February last year. Heaviest increase came from Imperial Oil, leader in the fight to save the Montreal market for foreign crude, with a boost of 8.9 per cent. B.A. upped its figure by 4.9 per cent while other majors will take much smaller increases.

Name of new company which will be formed by McGavin Bakeries Ltd. and Canadian Bakeries Ltd. will be McGavin-Toastmaster with James McGavin as chairman of the board, Canadian Bakeries president D. A. Ross as vice-chairman and McGavin president A. M. McGavin as president.

Parent company of Canadian Bakeries is Maple Leaf Milling Co. which is expected to announce plans for a merger with Toronto Elevators Ltd. before the end of this week.

Decrease in sales of building materials last year was blamed by Dominion Tar and Chemical Co. Ltd. president W. N. Hall for drop in profits.

Total sales at $215,116,592 compared with 1959 sales of $219,293,198. Mr. Hall said that building materials were expected to sell better this year.

Net earnings of $10,079,345 — $1.43 a share — compared with $11,230,918 last year. Sales for 1960 broken down by divisions were building materials, 30 per cent (off 5 per cent); chemicals, 26 per cent (up 2 per cent); and pulp and paper 44 per cent (up 3 per cent).

Canadian Car Co. Ltd., subsidiary of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd., has been given a defence contract to build 20 prototype Bobcats, light armored tracked vehicles.

Open tenders will be called in about two years to build 480 vehicles if they are found suitable.

Canadian branch of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith plans to introduce an American type monthly investment plan in Canada.

It would be a monthly investment plan allowing investors to buy as little as $40 worth of stock quarterly and could give the mutual funds a bit of a run for the investors' money.

The purchaser would declare his intention of investing a certain sum of money, from the minimum $40 quarterly up to any monthly sum, but no contract would be involved and the investor could stop, skip a payment or sell out at any time.

There would be only regular commissions to pay and no service or management charges.

This would be a monthly investment plan, not an installment plan but a pay-as-you-go plan. Investors could buy fractions of shares, that is buy dollars worth of shares like a motorist buying $2 worth of gas rather than so many gallons.

This is the sort of plan which has been often discussed by Canadian stockbrokers but the mechanics have always seemed too costly. Merrill Lynch, with its tremendous facilities in New York, could probably make an automatic process of the plan using electronic computers to handle the bookkeeping.

Bell Telephone of Canada has applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for approval of capital stock issue up to 2,150,000 shares. Last Bell offering was March, 1959, when shareholders were given rights to one for seven at $33. The board will study the terms and conditions within the next few weeks.

D. R. Abbot, manager of the Victoria office of Huron and Erie, Canada Trust, is attending a four-day company senior management conference at the Seignior Club, Montebello, Quebec. En route to the conference he stopped at head office in London to attend the annual general meeting of the firm.

New Plan to Save Famous Brewery

NEW YORK (AP)—A union-management agreement has been made in an effort to save the Jacob Ruppert brewery from liquidation.

The late Jacob Ruppert at one time was the owner of the New York Yankees ball club.

The plan involves voluntary layoffs averaging 10 per cent of the work force. It is expected to cut the 93-year-old firm's labor costs by $1,000,000 a year.

The union submitted the plan as a counter-proposal to one which management proposed—elimination of 48 jobs and a 10 per cent wage cut.

STORE SALES UP
OTTAWA (UPI)—Department store sales in the week ended Feb. 4 were up 8.9 per cent from a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics has announced.

All regions shared in the increase with gains ranging from 19 per cent in the Atlantic provinces to three per cent in Manitoba.

B-A OIL SHOWS PROFITS JUMP

TORONTO (CP)—British American Oil Co. Ltd., had net profit of $30,802,000 or $1.51 a share in 1960 compared with $25,602,000 and $1.25 in 1959.

E. D. Loughney, president, said that the improvement in earnings during 1960 was largely due to increased sales of natural gas and to approximately $2,000,000 realized on the sale of long-term investments and the company's tank car fleet.

Try Out Plan on Your PGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway has quietly challenged the B.C. government to try a freight rate experiment on its own Pacific Great Eastern Railway. The CPR tossed its dare to B.C. in its final argument to the MacPherson Royal Commission on transportation.

In his written argument, CPR vice-president Ian Sinclair suggests that the PGE is the ideal place to try out B.C.'s plan for a brand-new cost-oriented freight rate structure.

The plan was advanced before the royal commission last year by the B.C. government. "It should... be noted that B.C. is in the fortunate or unfortunate position of being the sole owner of a railway—the PGE," said Mr. Sinclair.

He says there are "obvious advantages" in trying out a cost-based freight rate structure on the PGE, which runs from West Vancouver to the Peace River country of north-eastern B.C.

If there are dislocations and dissatisfaction, then shippers can let the PGE owners—the provincial government itself—know about them quickly.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1961 —PAGE 17

FLOOD THREATENS LAKE RESIDENTS

A combination of warmer weather and heavy rain could cause flooding at Cowichan Lake as bad as the inundations which forced evacuation of several families in January, RCMP warned today.

The lake level is still several inches above normal for this time of year, they said, and warm rain on the heavy snow pack in surrounding hills could lift it to dangerous heights.

Rain Tuesday brought disaster "pretty close" by Tuesday night, they said.

In mid-January floods forced closure of sawmills at Youbou and Honeycomb Bay, isolated Youbou as a bridge was washed out at Meade Creek, forced closure of the Lake Cowichan post office, and caused minor damage in the liquor store at the village.

Major Project Going Before CIDC Meeting

Nine Months Of Planning

A three- or four-year Greater Victoria beautification project costing up to $800,000 is expected to be recommended Thursday at a meeting of the Capital Improvement District Commission.

The commission has allotted only about $80,000 of the $200,000 B.C. government grant it was given for the 1960-61 fiscal year, chairman J. Everett Brown said today.

He said he hopes the rest will be accounted for in a new project which has taken almost nine months of study and planning.

He said he cannot disclose details of the project until first it wins CIDC approval, and second a go-ahead from the provincial cabinet.

THREE YEARS

However, the project in mind is a major one, he said, and may take three or four years to complete.

The provincial government regularly grants $200,000 a year to the CIDC, and if the project uses up four years worth of grants, it will cost $800,000.

The CIDC is composed of municipal representatives and two government appointees. Its projects are for the general beautification of the capital area.

Usually when the cabinet approves a CIDC project, it pays the appropriate funds out of the $200,000 CIDC grant.

UNCLAIMED

Despite the fact that some $80,000 worth of plans were approved in the past nine months, the financial statement of the government for that period shows the entire $200,000 unclaimed.

Mr. Brown said he would look into that, but that he is sure the CIDC will get and use its full grant.

He conceded the commission has been slow in deciding its major project for the year, but it required a great deal of planning.

In the meantime such small projects as paving of the scenic drive at Cattle Point in Oak Bay and paving work on Simcoe Street had been initiated.

Major projects suggested as possible for the CIDC recently include improving Douglas Street. Approaches to the city with landscaping and boulevards and extensive development of the "Cathedral Hill" area which includes the new Law Courts building now under construction.

Subsidy Renewed For Texada Ferry

The B.C. government has renewed for two years a $15,000 subsidy to the operator of the Texada Island ferry to Powell River.

A cabinet order today says that H. C. R. Davis, of Nanaimo, will get that amount each year in quarterly instalments, as he has since 1957.

The order renews Mr. Davis' ferry charter.

Big Victory Won By Defiant Dairy

Milky Way Dairy Ltd., 815 Beekwith Avenue, Tuesday won its battle with the provincial government over milk cartons.

The victory came when Magistrate William Ostler ruled in Saanich police court that a regulation of the Milk Industry Act is ultra vires—invades the area of federal jurisdiction.

The magistrate subsequently dismissed a charge against the dairy of illegally using U.S. half-gallon measure milk cartons.

The charge was laid after the dairy refused to comply with an order of the minister of agriculture that the sale of milk in 64-ounce cartons be stopped. A Canadian half-gallon contains 30 quences.

According to the regulation in question only Imperial measure must be used in the dairy industry.

For the defence, W. R. McIntyre argued that federal legislation requires all transactions and packaging to comply with the Canadian Standard Measure based on the International Kilometer.

There is no reference in the federal laws to Imperial Measure.

Crown counsel Louis Lindholm submitted that Imperial and Canadian Standard measures are for all practical purposes identical.

"It is immaterial whether Imperial and Canadian Standard measures are identical," Mr. Ostler said.

"Imperial measure is a

Two 'Drifters' Admit Robbery

Deny Using Force On Shipyard Man

Two young men accused of robbing a shipyard worker who was dragged from his car early today, pleaded guilty in city police court to robbery with violence or threats.

Orli Coss, 27, and John G. Day, 19, no fixed address, denied using violence or threatening harm and claimed the $5 allegedly taken from their victim's wallet was actually a smaller amount.

William Campbell, 34, of 174 Joseph, went to work today at VMD Outer Wharf yard, apparently uninjured.

Because of the discrepancy between the facts told to detectives and what the accused said in court, Magistrate William Ostler remanded both to Thursday to enable Campbell to be called.

Det. Norman Bath said Campbell was forced from his car parked on Johnson near Blanshard and one of the accused told him:

"Don't holler for the police. I have a gun."

One of the men slapped him, Det. Bath said.

They took $5, or about that, from Campbell's wallet and put the wallet back in the man's pocket.

Coss said:

"We didn't touch him or push him at all. We didn't touch the man at all."

Day said there was no gun involved.

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady said the accused had come to Victoria from Port Alberni and one (Coss) had recently been in the U.S.

Detectives said Coss had served a prison term for an offence committed at Spokane, but was a Canadian citizen.

Mrs. Campbell said her husband told her he had just stepped into his car after attending a union meeting and stopping at a cafe.

The two men came up and pulled him from the car, she said. Campbell pushed them away and ran across the street, but he was tripped and the pair held him down, taking his eyeglasses and searching his wallet.

Then they threatened him and ran off, she said.

Campbell jumped back into his car, drove around the block to Yates where he spotted Const. Elmer Keleny, who had seen two men running west on Yates.

Detectives and patrol cars were alerted and a half-hour later, at 1:50 a.m., the two accused were arrested where they had registered at a Broad Street hotel.

BONUS PLAN FOR LUCKY TOURISTS

Once a week between June 3 and Sept. 2 a pair of visitors will be picked at random by Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce and named "Tourists of the Week."

The lucky couple will spend one day of their holiday in Victoria at no cost to themselves.

Ted Bird, director of Jaycees' tourist promotion and social welfare committee, said today.

The visitors will receive free accommodation for one night, taken on a sightseeing trip, be presented with souvenirs at local gift shops and entertained to dinner by Jaycees.

Probe Fails To Uncover

Fire Cause

Investigation into a fire last Saturday aboard the destroyer escort HMCS Skeena has so far failed to reveal cause of the blaze or to make a possible estimate of the damage.

The ship is in drydock at HMC Dockyard, undergoing repairs to her port propeller, damaged when it struck a dead-head off the west coast of Vancouver Island during the anti-submarine exercises last week.

IN RADIO ROOM

Initial stages of the naval investigation entailed clearing up the area of the fire, which was centred in a radio room on the port side, forward of the officers' wardroom on the main deck.

Amount of electrical equipment which will need replacing will determine the cost of repairs.

As the equipment is complicated and expensive, cost is expected to be heavy.

Propeller repairs will be completed without removing the wheel in drydock, and the Skeena is scheduled to be undocked Friday to rejoin the Second Canadian Escort Squadron.

MONTE ROBERTS

The Voice of the magazine subscription salesman is abroad in the land.

I have this on good authority, not only from friends who have listened to The Voice, but also from reading the public prints and from personal experience.

To be factual, I have had personal experience with The Voice since the dear, dead days beyond recall, when The Voice would announce:

"I'm workin' me way 't'roo collidge. If you should wanna buy a su'scription for a year, I'd put me over me quoter, an' I could get meself eddicated."

Now, my friends tell me, and the public prints tell me, hardly any of the magazine subscription salesmen are working their way 't'roo collidge.

Many of them need only 5,000 points to send them on a cruise around the world.

Some of them need LESS than 5,000 points to send them out of this world.

Other of The Voices announce they are on a sales training course, and as the first step, they are to introduce themselves to 10 people in this neighborhood, and to get each of the 10 people to sign his name, right here, like, and this entitles you ...

There are various other gimmicks employed by The Voices of the magazine subscription salesman abroad in the land, and all of them are peachy-dandy, rehearsed to the nines, and polished to a high gloss of double-talk.

But what I am waiting to hear is a report of The Voice using a brand-new gimmick, as follows:

"I want you should buy this here magazine for two bucks because if you do I get to keep a buck, and boy, do I need the dough."

On the basis of such a pitch, even I might be tempted to heed The Voice of the magazine subscription salesman which is now abroad in the land.

PLASTER CAST being made by occupational therapist Katharine Lichtensteiger will help support wrist of Arthur G. Morson, 1615 Pinewood, a sufferer from arthritis for the past 12 years.

Strong Plea To Save Coast Strip

The shore from Port Renfrew to Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island should be preserved for public recreation, Bruce Scott told a meeting of the Victoria Natural History Society Tuesday.

Mr. Scott, a former resident of Bamfield, said the wild and rugged coast with lakes only a short distance inland, possessed tremendous tourist and recreational possibilities.

He noted that at one time the federal government planned to develop the area into a federal park, but due to a disagreement with the provincial government, dropped the scheme.

"There is everything there," he said. "A variety of ocean beaches, lakes, rivers, meadows, timbered land, sheltered inlets and magnificent scenery."

He said it is up to the public to see that west coast remained unspoiled.

GADGETS FOR CRIPPLED

'While-You-Wait' Service in Town

By HAL JONES

Twenty-two Victoria "shut-ins," suffering from arthritis or rheumatism, will get a welcome visit this month from Miss Katharine Lichtensteiger, one of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's occupational therapists.

Here now, Miss Lichtensteiger will visit patients throughout Vancouver Island, helping them train themselves to live as normally as possible.

SELF-HELP AIDS

There are, altogether, four occupational therapists based at the society's centre in Vancouver. Using a van, they travel the province in turns visiting patients and supplying self-help aids.

Arthritis sufferers sometimes have difficulty doing normal every-day things, such as putting on shoes. With a little ingenuity, Miss Lichtensteiger and her colleagues improvise gadgets—fixing a rod to a shoe horn—to get them out of these difficulties.

VAN DONATED

The van—which was donated to the society—is equipped with a work-bench to enable a therapist to make these aids.

The van and therapist visit the island once a year to work in conjunction with the local C.A.R.S. clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Litter Only, Please, Garbage Not Wanted

A new weapon was chosen today by city council's public works committee to launch another offensive against street litter.

It recommended installation of 10 new street litter cans, at a cost of $2,000, along Douglas Street in a trial run. The cans are modern in design and have a raised cover attached.

This will allow people to deposit litter in the cans without the wind blowing it back out, said city engineer J. C. Garnett.

The design also would discourage some persons who, at present, are dumping their household garbage into the open street cans instead of taking it to the garbage wharf.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood said the new cans cost three times as much as the present ones.

"But they're just not effective, so what's the use of continuing them," replied Ald. M. J. Griffin.

Committee also decided to use signs warning the public that littering streets is a punishable offence. Wording of the signs will be decided later.

But a proposal to flush streets was turned down after Mr. Garnett reported it would cost $200 a day for the commercial chore of $445 daily for the entire downtown area unless expensive equipment was purchased.

TOO COSTLY

"That's almost a mill just to do the chore," said Ald. Edgewood. "It's just too prohibitive to consider."

"We'll just have to appeal to merchants and the public to stop littering the streets. We'll also have to appeal to people outside the city to stop bringing their garbage in and dumping it into the street cans."

Ald. Griffin said prosecutions were needed to combat litterbugs.

Seven-Hour Day, Wage Hike Sought By B.C. Carpenters

B.C. Carpenters, including about 600 in the Greater Victoria area, are seeking a seven-hour day plus a wage increase, following preliminary talks at Vancouver recently between the provincial council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Heavy Construction Association of B.C. and the Amalgamated Contractors' Association.

Employers have warned they cannot afford increases this year and are proposing a lower pay scale for interior areas to conform with lower mainland rates.

The carpenters are seeking a 21-cent per hour increase. Present scale in Victoria is $2.84 an hour, in Vancouver $2.92 an hour.

The January unemployment figure—amounting to 10.8 per cent of the labor force—was 165,000 higher than the jobless figure at mid-December.

It was 146,000 higher than a year earlier and 56,000 higher than the previous post-war unemployment peak of 637,000, set in March of 1958.

The 10.8 per cent ratio of people out of jobs to the total labor force of 6,396,000 compares with 10.6 per cent at the 1958 unemployment peak. It is also higher than 8.8 per cent in January, 1960, and 9.5 per cent in January, 1959.

Picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Jan. 1961	Dec. 1960	Jan. 1960
Labor force	6,396	6,430	6,203
Employed	5,703	5,902	5,636
Unemployed	693	528	547

While the ranks of the unemployed jumped substantially in the new year, employment was also 47,000 higher than a year earlier, despite a seasonal decline of 199,000. Of the 693,000 unemployed workers at mid-January, the majority—87 per cent—were men, the same proportion as in December.

Almost one-third had been in the construction industry when they were let out. Another third were in the various service-producing industries. The remainder were mostly in manufacturing and forestry.

Temporary layoffs showed a major jump between December and January, increasing to 63,000 from 39,000.

Of the remaining 630,000 out of a job and seeking work, 71 per cent had been unemployed for three months or less, 18 per cent for four to six months and 11 per cent for seven months or more.

A key point in the labor department's analysis is that the labor force at mid-January was 31 per cent higher than a year earlier, while employment was up 0.8 per cent.

The number of women with jobs increased by 101,000 over the year while the number of men employed showed a drop of 54,000.

STUDENTS GO WILD

Embassies Cringe As Violence Flares

LONDON (Reuters) — Student mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw and set fire to the Belgian Embassy in Cairo today in fresh demonstrations against the slaying of Patrice Lumumba, ousted premier of the Congo.

Yelling students grappled with diplomats in the Warsaw embassy as they ransacked offices and carted documents to a bonfire in the street, splattering violet ink as they went.

"They even went for the women staff," said a diplomat, shaken from the second attack on the Warsaw embassy in two days.

Embassy officials and their secretaries took refuge from flying stones as about 300 demonstrators outside unleashed a fusillade amid shouts of "murderers, murderers."

In Cairo, rioting students invaded the Belgian Embassy and set fire to different parts of the building in a systematic effort to raze it.

Thick columns of smoke poured from the embassy's shattered windows and the street was littered with furniture hurled from second-storey windows.

Crowds stoned the United States, information office, United Nations headquarters and the British Embassy.

The demonstrations came in the wake of violent protests Tuesday which left Belgian embassies heaped with rubble and shattered glass in Belgrade, Moscow and Warsaw.

Moscow workers' delegations streamed into the American, Belgian, British and French embassies today to deliver protests accusing these countries of being implicated in Lumumba's death.

UN FLAG TORN

Some 3,000 demonstrators in Accra tore a United Nations flag to bits outside the regional UN offices in the Ghanaian capital. The crowd also demonstrated outside the American Embassy and one man repeatedly fired an old muzzle-loading rifle in the air.

In Paris, club-swinging police clashed outside the Belgian Embassy with a crowd of about 500 members of the French National Federation of African students, who chanted slogans such as "imperialist murderers," "Hammaraskjold resign" and "long live Lumumba."

U.S. SKATING TEAM KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Guards Injured In Melee

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A screaming fist-swinging demonstration by pro-Lumumba Negroes that U.S. officials claimed was Communist-inspired disrupted a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today.

It was the wildest melee in UN history.

Some two dozen Negroes began the demonstration in the packed public gallery of the Security Council as U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson defended Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and said Russia's demand for his dismissal was a "virtual declaration of war on the United Nations."

Eighteen UN guards were injured slightly in the fracas. One of the demonstrators who had been struck in the mouth also was treated at the dispensary.

Six men and four women were taken to the security offices and later released after a short time. No charges were placed against them.

DREW KNIFE

One of the rioters drew a knife on a guard but was disarmed.

A UN official said there was a definite signal when one group of about 50 or 60, almost all Negroes, broke through the public door leading into the spectator section. About 15 got inside and started down toward the area where the delegates were seated.

At that moment, another group seated in the hall, joined in the demonstration.

Two photographers were injured and spectators were jostled as UN guards ejected male demonstrators while their female companions continued to cry "Vive Lumumba!" and unintelligible epithets until the gallery was ordered cleared. All the Negroes interviewed by newsmen said they were Americans.

PRIVATE TALK

Official Washington sources explained privately to newsmen that the demonstration was Communist-inspired and said another was planned for 4 p.m. outside UN headquarters here.

They linked the near-riot with mob violence against Belgian embassies abroad following the slaying of leftist leader Patrice Lumumba.

Informed sources said some of the demonstrators were admitted to the gallery on protocol passes obtained through the delegations of Ghana and Guinea.

After the security council was cleared, the UN headquarters was closed to the public for the rest of the day but the Congo debate continued.

At the UN entrance three demonstrators were arrested for shouting at passersby. Stevenson, who attacked Russia's Congo policy, apologized to the council for the outbreak "to the extent that Americans may be involved."

CRASH SNUFFED THEIR SMILES

Happy smiles were worn by this trio of U.S. figure skaters just before they boarded Belgian Sabena jet airliner at New York's Idlewild Airport Tuesday night for world skating championships in Prague. Plane crashed at Brussels, carrying Rhodie Michelson, left, Long Beach, Calif.; Laurence Owen, of Boston, North American women's skating queen, and Steffi Westerfield, of Colorado Springs, Colo., and the remainder of the 18-man U.S. team, plus 54 others to their death. (AP Wirephoto.)

Britain Supports Dag In Lumumba 'Murder'

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government today made it clear it regards the killing of ousted Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba as murder.

It also made plain its intention of backing the United Nations Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjold, in the face of Russian ouster demands over the incident.

The government stand was enunciated in the House of Lords by the foreign secretary, the Earl of Home, who called the killing "a disgraceful episode" and said Britain "utterly deplored" Lumumba's death.

Reading of Home's statement in the Commons by David Ormsby, Gore, minister of state for foreign affairs, touched off a noisy scene.

Labor member Fenner Brockway was greeted by Conservative shouts of "withdraw" and "sit down" when he tried to link responsibility for the Lumumba killing to the Eisenhower regime. Britain and Belgium as well as rival Congo factions.

Finally the speaker, Sir

73 Die as Jet Plunges Into Belgian Field

(Times News Services)

BRUSSELS — Seventy-three persons, including the United States figure skating team, perished today in the flaming crash of a Sabena Airlines jet. Fifty-four Americans and one Canadian were among the dead in the Boeing 707.

The 18 members of the skating team were going to Prague for the international figure skating championships.

Among the dead was Laurence Owen, 16, who won the North American figure skating championship only four days ago.

Disaster struck at 10:05 a.m. as the $5,000,000 plane, its engines sounding oddly, sought a landing in bright sunshine after the flight from New York.

It slammed to earth beside a wood three miles north of Brussels International Airport and went up in flames fed by fuel as the tanks exploded one by one.

FARMER KILLED

All 61 passengers and the crew of 11 died. A Belgian farmer tilling his cabbage patch was struck and killed.

Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 49, of Winchester, Mass., nine-time figure skating champion, was killed along with her two daughters who were members of the current team. The girls were Laurence, 16, and Maribel Owen, 20. Mrs. Owen last weekend had seen Laurence win the North American championship at Philadelphia over Wendy Griner of Toronto.

Mrs. Owen and coach Deane McMinn of Lomita, Calif., were accompanying the team to Prague. Mrs. Owen's husband died in 1952.

The team is the fifth major sports group wiped out by plane crashes in a dozen years, including soccer teams in Italy, Britain and Denmark.

GOING TO FUNERAL

Victor Maes, 39, only Canadian aboard the plane, was a naturalized Canadian born in Belgium. A tobacco farmer at Vanessa near Brantford, he was on his way to his mother's funeral near Brussels. His wife Rachel was to have accompanied him, but changed her mind.

CANADA TEAM LANDS SAFELY

AMSTERDAM (CP) — The Canadian figure-skating team, which like the U.S. squad was en route to the world championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia, also left New York's Idlewild Airport Tuesday night aboard another plane bound for Amsterdam.

The Canadians arrived at Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam this morning and left an hour later for Prague.

U.S. Skaters 7th Tragedy For Athletes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The death of 18 members of the United States figure skating team in an airplane crash in Belgium while en route to the world championships in Prague is the seventh air tragedy in recent years involving sports teams.

In 1933, two members of the Winnipeg Toilers basketball team lost their lives when a plane carrying the team crashed in Kansas.

Thirty-one persons were killed in a crash at Turin, Italy, May 4, 1949, including all members of the Italian national soccer team—halled as the greatest Italian team of all time. It was composed of players from the Torino 11 of Turin which won the national championship four straight years.

In 1956, five football players, returning from the Shrine all-star game in Vancouver, were among 62 persons killed in a crash in the Rocky Mountains 100 miles east of Vancouver.

On Feb. 6, 1958, a British airliner carrying Britain's championship soccer team home from Yugoslavia fell and burned at Munich, and among the 21 killed were seven members of the team and eight British sports writers.

Two sports air tragedies occurred last year. On July 16, a chartered plane crashed at Copenhagen, killing eight of Denmark's leading soccer players.

On Oct. 29, another chartered plane cracked up in fog at the Toledo airport, killing 16 members of the California Poly football team of San Luis Obispo en route home after being beaten 50-6 by Bowling Green of Ohio.
